

Senate Bloc Will Battle Repeal of Arms Embargo Act

24 Members Oppose Munitions Sale To Belligerents

MAP STRATEGY

Roosevelt's Backers Expect His Proposals Will Be Carried Out

Washington — (P) — Twenty leading Democratic senators voted unanimously today in favor of limiting legislation at the special session to neutrality.

A joint meeting of the Democratic steering and policy committees, headed by Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky adopted a resolution stating that "legislation at this extraordinary session of the congress should be limited to the purposes for which the president has convened it."

Barkley explained the resolution meant that the leadership would work to prevent consideration of any measures not dealing directly with neutrality.

Washington — (P) — Two determined senatorial factions began digging in today for a conclusive battle over President Roosevelt's renewed appeal to scrap the arms embargo and substitute a "cash and carry" system under international law.

Led by 73-year-old Hiram Johnson (R-Calif.), 24 senators quickly organized a bloc to oppose the sale of arms to warring nations, on the ground it would be likely to force the United States into the European conflict.

Senator LaFollette (P-Wis.) speaking for the group, said it would fight repeal of the embargo "from hell to breakfast."

Confidence of ultimate victory was expressed by supporters of the president, who included some Republicans and "old line" Democrats as well as New Dealers.

Plan Conference

Hailing Mr. Roosevelt's solemn speech to congress yesterday as charting the safest course for the nation in the present emergency, they arranged strategy conferences at the White House and the capitol.

Their aim, leaders said, was to limit the session to neutrality revision, obtain action in two or three weeks and adjourn. Senate and house leaders of both parties would stay here, at the president's request, to consult with him on policy until the regular session begins in January.

The variance of comments on the presidential message led politicians to forecast a senate debate comparable to the bitter League of Nations fight after the World war. Only on one point—his expressed belief the United States could keep out of war—did Mr. Roosevelt win applause from all sides.

The cheering crowds scarcely had left the house chamber after Mr. Roosevelt's address yesterday when 15 Republican senators, 6 Democrats and 2 Farmer-Laborites and the sole Progressive discussed opposition strategy in the office of Senator Johnson.

Strategy Group

After naming the Californian as their leader, the group selected Borah (R-Idaho) as Chief policy man and Clark (D-Mo.) as parliamentary guide. With LaFollette (P-Wis.) and Nye (R-N.D.) as additional members of a strategy committee.

It was decided to send members of the bloc to various cities to whip up support for the opposition campaign.

Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) postponed from tomorrow until Monday a meeting of the foreign relations committee to consider the president's recommendations for legislation.

Pittman said the decision was reached because several members wished to leave Washington for the weekend.

Pittman called earlier on Mr. Roosevelt in company with Senator Connally (D-Texas), a member of the committee.

Connally and Pittman arranged to work this afternoon on the draft. Turn to page 2 col. 6

LaFollette and Wiley Opposed to Embargo Changes

Senior Senator Says Bloc 'Will Fight From Hell to Breakfast'

Washington — Senator Robert M. LaFollette Jr., Wisconsin Progressive, declared yesterday the arms embargo bloc in congress would fight "from hell to breakfast" against the repeal of the embargo on arms shipments to belligerent nations.

Commenting on the expected congressional battle over President Roosevelt's appeal for abolition of the embargo, LaFollette said:

"The milk in this coconut is the arms embargo. On that we're going to fight from hell to breakfast."

The president's plea for changes in the neutrality act, apparently changed no mind in the Wisconsin delegation.

Senator Alexander Wiley, said that the president's message "was a thought-provoking speech," and that he favored keeping congress in continuous session. His letters to constituents replying to their messages on neutrality do not state how he will vote on repealing the arms embargo and on reviving "cash and carry," but say that he is for keeping "clear of foreign entanglements" for legislation "most effective in preserving peace."

Sentenced to Prison In Manslaughter Case

Detroit — (P) — Stanley Michalski, 25-year-old steel worker who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Katherine Weadock, one-time Saginaw, Mich., society woman, was sentenced today to 14 to 15 years in prison by Recorder's Judge John P. Scallen.

Michalski confessed knocking down Mrs. Weadock, divorced wife of a Saginaw attorney, during an argument in a Detroit hotel July 1. Mrs. Weadock died the following day.

Unidentified U-Boats Seen Off Southern Alaska and Off Boston, Roosevelt Reveals

Washington — (P) — President Roosevelt disclosed today that submarines, which he said were not identified, had been sighted in waters off southern Alaska and off Boston.

The maritime commission, the chief executive told reporters, had been informed of the presence of the two undersea craft.

The submarines were not American, Mr. Roosevelt said, and they were sighted by ships at sea. He declined to disclose the specific source of the government's information about their presence, but said those sources were perfectly reliable.

The submarine in the Pacific, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, was off the southern boundary of Alaska, where it joins Canadian territory.

That in the Atlantic, he said, was 50 to 70 miles from the southern tip of Nova Scotia, half way between there and Nantucket shoals.

Asked whether the government's "neutrality patrol" was in the vicinity of the submarines, Mr. Roosevelt said merely that the patrol was operating from Eastport, Maine, and in the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea. There is no regular patrol in Pacific waters, he added.

Asked whether the underwater ships were in the territorial waters of this country, he replied that he would stand on his recent definition of territorial waters which was to the effect that they extended as far as American interests extended.

To a question about whether American interests were involved as a result of the operations of the submarines, the president replied by asking what kind of submarines they were.

He suggested laughingly that they might be Swiss and suggested that reporters not get too nosy.

Some one wanted to know whether the sub-surface craft might be Canadian. Again the president laughed and declared they might be Bolivian or Afghan.

Two Revenue Proposals Up Before Senate

Assembly Action Would Provide Additional $7,671,000

DELAY FINAL O. K.

Upper House Adjourns Until Monday After Fight Over Bill

Madison — (P) — Two new tax proposals, bearing the approval of the assembly, were placed in the hands of the senate today but that body adjourned until Monday, dimming the prospects of sine die adjournment early next week.

The house measures would provide an additional $7,671,000 toward balancing the state budget. One of them included a $5,000,000 appropriation for relief aids to counties.

The assembly attached to the old age pension bill last night a rider which revamped portions of the income tax law to yield an additional $9,756,000 in taxes, of which the state would retain $5,971,000 and return $3,885,000 to local governments. The vote was 79 to 12.

The house today passed a separate relief measure to raise $1,800,000, far short of the amount appropriated.

The senate tentatively had agreed to remain in session Friday afternoon to discuss the revenue problem, but a fight over an insurance bill forced adjournment to Monday.

Revenue Proposals

Details of the tax proposals: Pension bill rider: Repeal the individual dividend income deduction clause in the present law to raise $6,251,000; increase income taxes in brackets over $5,000 one-half of 1 per cent to raise $780,000; levy $200,000 by eliminating the income tax offset on grain and coal supplies; take in 112,000 new income taxpayers by lowering present exemptions from $17.50 to 15 for married couples, $8 to $6 for single persons and $4 to $3 for dependents.

Relief bill: Re-enact the surtax on gross earnings of telephone companies to yield $1,500,000; levy $10 tax on music boxes for a total of $300,000.

While it approved these revenue plans the assembly rejected other proposals to increase gasoline taxes 1 cent a gallon for one year and boost liquor taxes 25 cents a gallon. The amounts voted by the house would be added to receipts of approximately $200,000.

Drunken Driver Fined $50, Costs

Wesley Quaintance, 56, Deerbrook, Pleads Guilty to Charge

Wesley Quaintance, 56, Deerbrook, pleaded guilty of drunken driving and was fined $50 and costs with an alternative of 60 days in the county detention camp when he was arraigned before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning.

His driving license was revoked for one year. He had not paid his fine at noon.

Quaintance was arrested about 8 o'clock last night at Reame avenue in Kaukauna by Harold Engerson, Kaukauna motorcycle officer, and Jack Frenzi, county motorcycle officer.

Engerson said Quaintance narrowly missed another automobile at Second street and Main avenue, was blowing his horn and driving erratically.

Attorney Testifies at Dies Committee Probe

Washington — (P) — The house committee investigating un-American activities questioned Charles Recht, a New York lawyer, today in a session described by acting Chairman Starnes (D-Ala.) as preliminary to the appearance of a "willing witness who will spill the beans."

Starnes said "the willing witness" knows all the details of various soviet financial transactions in the United States.

Recht, who said he was a native of Czechoslovakia, testified he had visited soviet Russia seven or eight times on inheritance and insurance matters. He said he had represented 12,000 persons, including many Russians, who had claims against American insurance companies.

The witness said he was not a communist, although as a lawyer he had served soviet interests.

Disabled Veterans Fund Bill Passed by Senate

Madison — (P) — The senate approved today a bill by five assemblymen appropriating $10,000 to help finance the 1940 national convention of Disabled American Veterans of the World War at Green Bay. Vote on concurrence was 19 to 10. The bill is in the same category with that signed yesterday by Governor Heil, appropriating $50,000 to the American Legion National Convention Corporation of Milwaukee.

French Launch New Drive to Take Saarbruecken; No 'Big Push' Tactics are Considered

London — (P) — Premier Daladier and French military leaders flew to England today for a meeting of the allied supreme war council.

Paris — (P) — The French government told the nation tonight that "the first phase of the war has ended" with Poland subjected but with the allies in a stronger position to battle Germany.

Jean Giraudoux, general commissioner of information, declared in a broadcast that Germany had lost heavily in the invasion of Poland while the western front had been thrust into German territory.

Paris — (P) — A new drive against the German industrial city of Saarbruecken was reported today by the French general staff.

A military communique which gave few details indicated a recent lull had been shattered by new French maneuvers and advance guard skirmishes.

Artillery on both sides, the communique said, was active along the entire front from the Moselle river along the Luxembourg-Germany frontier to the Rhine river, which becomes the boundary between France and Germany 100 miles to the southeast.

The French empire's black Senegalese troops were reported en route to the western front in the war which Premier Daladier declared would end German attempts at "world domination."

Sharpshooters mobilized from France's colonial reservoir of manpower were said to be moving up the west coast of Africa in guarded transports.

Observers saw indications in Daladier's world broadcast speech last night that France and Britain may wage a "defensive" war—at least on the land.

German-Russian Agreement Fixes 'Lines' in Poland

Berlin Silent on Roosevelt Arms Sale Plan but Hails Peace Intention

Vercize, Hungary, (at the Polish Frontier) — (P) — The Warsaw radio, back on the air again after going silent yesterday, broadcast a shrill air raid alarm today in evidence that the Germans still were attacking the besieged capital.

Berlin — (P) — A German-Russian agreement under which Germany is withdrawing her armies in Poland to the west of the continuous north-south line formed by the Pissa, Narva, Vistula and San Rivers was announced here today.

Warsaw, on the west bank of the Vistula, will remain in German hands.

The announcement described the line of the rivers as the "demarcation line," but it was pointed out that future boundaries would not necessarily follow it.

Russian armies, however, will occupy eastern Poland up to this line, including the cities of Lublin, Luck, Lwow, Brestec (Brest-Litovsk), Bialystok and Wilno (Vilna).

The fate of Warsaw was understood to have been one of the last points agreed upon in the Nazi-soviet negotiations on immediate apportionment of Polish territory.

Diplomatic negotiations to settle the future of the Polish people so far as Germany and Russia are concerned and to establish future German-Russian boundaries were continuing in Moscow as staff officers fixed terms of army movements.

Slayer Executed in N. Carolina Prison

Raleigh, N. C. — (P) — James Godwin, 21, once released from jail by the warden's daughter, was executed by gas today at state's prison for the death of Donald Moss, a textile worker, at High Point last Oct. 3.

Moss was shot during a holdup several hours after Godwin and his companion were released from jail at Lexington by Lula Belle Kimmel, who said they had "got religion and promised to go straight." Godwin was awaiting trial on a charge of beating his grandfather in a robbery attempt. He later was captured and convicted of murder.

Neutrality Conference Aims To Assure 'Internal Concord, External Security,' Hull Says

New York — (P) — Cordell Hull, secretary of state, said today the inter-American neutrality conference at Panama was "designed to assure internal concord and external security for the nations of our hemisphere."

He told the Pan-American union's governing board "now that a major war in Europe is a grim reality, there is greater necessity than ever before for all nations, still in a position to do so, to increase their exertions for the preservation of those fundamental principles of civilized international relations, through the application of which alone, we of the Americas, are firmly convinced, the progress of the human race can be maintained."

There is no other basis of enduring peace, of cultural and material advancement for nations and for individuals, of social and political institutions founded upon human freedom and the dignity of the human soul.

Hull, who is chairman of the governing board, was the chief speaker at a program highlighting the Pan-American day observance at the New York world's fair.

Ranking diplomatic envoys of the Latin American countries came from Washington to participate in the observance.

Washington — (P) — Secretary Hull expressed today his "deepest sympathy" over the assassination of Rumanian Premier Calinescu.

He cabled Rumanian Minister for Foreign Affairs Gregorie Gafencu: "It is with deep regret that I have received the sad news of the untimely death of Prime Minister Calinescu at the hands of an assassin. On behalf of my fellow countrymen and in my own name I extend deepest sympathy to you and through you to the people of Rumania."

NEW PREMIER

General George Argesanu (above), former war minister, became the new premier of Rumania following the assassination of Armand Calinescu.

Reliable sources said thousands of members of the outlawed Iron Guard had been taken from concentration camps throughout the country and shot to death to avenge yesterday's killing of the premier, who was an implacable foe of the guard.

These sources also said some women had been shot.

It was announced officially that 44 Iron Guardists were executed at the Merkurea-Cluj concentration camp while 32 were shot by firing squads at Prahova.

Mass executions were said to be continuing.

Support McMahon To Head Bureau

Lawyer Who Filed Judgments Says Qualifications Not Involved

Madison — (P) — The executive office had on file today two letters to Governor Heil advising him that court judgments of $20,000 against Stephen J. McMahon of Wauwatosa were the result of depression era financial reverses and did not reflect on McMahon's qualifications to head the new state tax department.

The governor withdrew McMahon's appointment from the senate yesterday, but gave no reason. The principal judgments, as claims on McMahon's salary, had been filed with the secretary of state by Attorney Charles H. Avery of Antigo.

The two letters to the governor were written by Avery and O. T. McMahon of Milwaukee, brother of the nominee.

Avery said that Stephen McMahon formerly owned the Butterfield Hotel Corporation at Antigo, but that changes in traffic caused by highway improvements and the general bad effect of the depression on hotel had ruined an otherwise financially profitable business. His letter showed it had been endorsed by Avery's client, W. B. Kramar of Mattoon, Wis., who, as assignee, had purchased the judgments from the receiver of the Butterfield National bank of Antigo.

O. T. McMahon said the judgments were purchased at a figure far below face value and that both parties have been cooperating to reach an amicable settlement.

Iron Guardists Shot After Being Taken From Camps

NATION ALERT

Virtual Military Dictatorship Rules; New Cabinet Formed

BY LLOYD LEHRBAS

Bucharest — (P) — Thousands were reported executed today as Rumania's virtual military dictatorship exacted a heavy blood-price from the pro-Nazi Iron Guard for the assassination of Premier Armand Calinescu.

Reliable sources said thousands of members of the outlawed Iron Guard had been taken from concentration camps throughout the country and shot to death to avenge yesterday's killing of the premier, who was an implacable foe of the guard.

These sources also said some women had been shot.

It was announced officially that 44 Iron Guardists were executed at the Merkurea-Cluj concentration camp while 32 were shot by firing squads at Prahova.

Mass executions were said to be continuing.

Reliable sources said a minimum of three Iron Guard members were being taken from each of Rumania's 72 administrative districts for the firing squads.

Public Execution

The whirlwind cleanup of alleged pro-Nazi elements was pushed also with widespread arrests by the quick-acting government.

Eight Iron Guardists, whose outlawed organization Calinescu fought, were executed publicly as a consequence of the assassination and King Carol has taken swift, extreme measures to thwart any possibility of a coup.

All night long, morbidly curious crowds swarmed in the street where the bodies lay sprawled on the bloody pavement.

The eight of them lay just where they had fallen from a firing squad's bullets—at the exact spot where the premier was slain. As the shots rang out, and the men toppled over on by one, a loud cry went up from thousands of witnesses, men, women and children.

A short time after what an official announcement called a "public example" to all "who would follow the Iron Guard" police tossed in the macabre scene the bodies of two others who were said to have committed suicide after barricading themselves in a Bucharest mansion.

As dawn cast an eerie light over the death spot, the crowd turned toward the Rumanian Athenaeum where the body of Calinescu will lie in state until an impressive funeral planned for Sunday.

King Reads Will

In a trembling voice, King Carol read to the crown council last night the testament in which the assassinated premier bequeathed to the king the "honorable name I inherited from my father" and asked that his body be carried "in a peasant cart drawn by six oxen" to a tomb beside his father at Arges.

Meanwhile, hundreds of arrests were made throughout Rumania in a whirlwind series of raids timed to crush the Iron Guard, at whose door officials laid full responsibility for the slaying.

King Carol named a new government within eight hours, mindful of the massed armies of soviet Russia, Bulgaria and Hungary at his frontiers and of the army of Germany not so far away in southern Poland.

Bulgaria, Hungary and Russia turned over territory to Rumania after the World war and the return of some of it has been demanded.

Britain Describes 'Inside Story' of Steps to Conflict

Book Reveals Various Exchanges in Final Days of Peace

London—(AP)—The British government, by means of a 193-page blue book, has told its "inside story" of the steps that led to war. It told how Adolf Hitler invited an Anglo-German alliance; how he declared he preferred war now while he was 50 instead of later when he would be 55 or 60; and how, in the words of British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson, Hitler did not seem "over enthusiastic" about Germany's pact with Soviet Russia.

The blue book documented the exchanges between Britain and Germany in the final days of peace. It said Sir Neville on his own responsibility suggested to Hitler that Poland's foreign minister, Jozef Beck, meet German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, and discuss a "way out" in peace.

"Herr Hitler's reply was that he had invited M. Beck to come and talk the matter over last March only to have his invitation flatly refused," the book said.

Used Violent Language
On Aug. 23, Henderson said, "Hitler was excited and uncompromising" when he first saw him. "His language was violent and exaggerated both as regards England and Poland." Later in the day, however, he saw Hitler when he "was quite calm . . . and never raised his voice once."

On the occasion of his first visit that day, Henderson gave Hitler Prime Minister Chamberlain's letter suggesting a truce to permit direct discussions between Poland and Germany in regard to minority populations.

Hitler's reply, the blue book said, was that "Germany had nothing to lose, and Great Britain much; that he did not desire war but would not shrink from it if it was necessary, and that his people were much more behind him than last September," the time of the Czechovalia crisis.

At the second Henderson-Hitler meeting that day the fuhrer placed the blame for war on Britain, declaring she was "determined to destroy and exterminate Germany." It was then that he referred to war in relation to his age.

Talk With Goering
On Aug. 24, the blue book continued, the Polish ambassador in Berlin, unable to see the German state secretary, Baron von Weizsacker, had an interview with Field Marshal Goering, who told the ambassador he regretted that his (Goering's) "policy of maintaining friendly relations with Poland should have come to naught, and admitted that he no longer had influence to do much in the matter."

"The field marshal hinted that Poland should abandon her alliance with Great Britain and let the Polish government with the impression that Germany was aiming at a free hand in eastern Europe," the book declared.

"On the 25th of August Herr Hitler sent for Sir Neville Henderson and asked him to fly to London to 'put the case' to his majesty's government. The 'case' which included an offer of friendship with Great Britain, once the Polish government had been solved, was contained in a verbal conversation made to his majesty's ambassador. During the discussion with Herr Hitler, Sir Neville stated once more that Great Britain 'could not go back on her word to Poland,' and would insist upon a settlement by negotiation. Hitler refused to guarantee a negotiated settlement on the ground that Polish provocation might at any moment render German intervention to protect German nationals inevitable."

PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS TO REMOVE ARMS EMBARGO

It was a grave and earnest president who went to the Capitol to address the newly convened special session of congress and present his plea that the embargo on arms shipments to belligerents be abolished and a "cash and carry" system substituted for it. King Carol Rules With Firm Hand in Crisis as Nation Strives to Remain Neutral

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—Square-jawed King Carol steered Rumania through a night of desperate crisis, after the assassination of Premier Calinescu and an attempted coup against the government by elements of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard of turbulent history.

The position, however, remained razor-edged and dangerous in the extreme not only for Rumania but for Europe as a whole.

Ever since the Polish crisis boiled over, this greatest of the Balkan nations has been trying to hide from covetous eyes. Rumania's sides bulge with lands taken from other countries—Bulgaria, Hungary and Russia—all on its borders.

And Hitler badly needs Rumania's rich oil field for prosecution of the war. Berlin already has a strong hold on the country, but reportedly has found recent efforts to gain complete control of the oil blocked by Calinescu.

Neutrality Aim
Rumania has been trying her utmost to steer a neutral course, though her heart is with the Anglo-French allies. But she is under the big guns of nazism and dare not challenge Berlin too far.

Rumania's big fear of the moment is that yesterday's trouble may be used as an excuse by an outside power to occupy the country on the grounds that the government no longer is capable of maintaining order.

The determination with which Carol has faced his enemies is shown in the primitive, chilling punishment meted out to eight of those accused of participation in the plot. They were executed publicly on the spot where Calinescu met his death in the heart of the capital. All night the oodles lay there as a terrible warning to others—and as notification to the outside world that Rumania intends to defend her sovereignty.

This Rumanian eruption, which has brought the entire Balkan peninsula and Hungary to their toes, may have a considerable effect on the general war at this juncture.

German Problem
With Poland virtually crushed, Germany has been moving large numbers of troops, warplanes and heavy arms from the east to the western front for operations against the Anglo-French allies. Now, one would expect that this movement might stop, or even be reversed in part, for the Germans surely dare not leave eastern Europe ungarrisoned at such a time.

Hitler's Balkan states have been treading narrow paths since the storm broke, and perforce they often have to bend with the wind, which now is howling down their slopes from both Germany and Russia. It would be the height of folly, however, for nazism to leave the cock-pit of eastern Europe ungarrisoned.

The Anglo-French "brotherhood" has been working quietly to try to break Mussolini away from the Berlin-Rome axis and bring him onto the allied side. With him they hope to swing most of the Balkans.

The allied success or failure in this venture may depend a great deal on what Russia's future attitude is.

Nazis Near Border
The development on the western front which is exciting most comment, perhaps because it is a mystery, is a reported heavy concentration of German troops and large numbers of warplanes at Aix-Ja-

Chapelle (Aachen), an important junction near the Belgian and Netherlands borders.

Quite naturally both these little countries have been anxious, remembering the lightning invasion of Belgium by Germany at the outbreak of the World War. Rumors of an impending invasion got so strong that yesterday German propaganda Minister Goebbels vigorously denounced Germany's intention to violate the neutrality of either of these countries or of Luxembourg.

That perhaps will not quiet the anxiety of nazism's little neighbors, or of the allies. But quite apart from any moral aspect of the case, the propaganda minister's assertion sounds like sense.

There could be no point in Germany trying to break through that way, excepting as a measure of desperation when everything else had failed.

This isn't 1914. The element of surprise which Germany invoked then is lacking now. The road to the coast no longer is as open as 25 years ago.

Both Belgium and Holland are prepared to defend their neutrality. In the case of Belgium, not only have the Belgians built a vast line of defenses on their border, but the French have extended their great Maginot along the entire Franco-Belgian frontier.

The Germans would have to hew a bloody path through these two lines to reach the channel ports. They would encounter the floods from broken dikes if they tried to cross Holland.

So Herr Goebbels' announcement seems like the real thing. What is possible is that the Germans are making Aix a protective and supply base, coupled with an air base of defenses on their border, before long. This would seem to be a logical location for a big air force which could harry channel and North sea shipping, including all important movement of troops and supplies from England to the battle field in France.

today but unofficial sources considered it good as well as bad news for Germany.

Revision of the United States' neutrality law would be unwelcome news to Germany although it was generally believed that, as far as possible, military planners had anticipated such a development.

The general impression was that lifting of the embargo—while technically seeming to treat all war nations alike—actually would be to the disadvantage of Germany because of Great Britain's power on the Atlantic.

Officials who usually are at hard to give an insight into German official opinion could not be reached—a sign the government was making a thorough study before expressing an attitude or disclosing any measure to meet whatever the American position might be.

Unofficial opinion, however, noted with satisfaction that the president had expressed determination to keep the United States out of war and has struck what they regarded as a note of independence from Great Britain.

Many Iron Guard Members Shot to Avenge Premier

sion here has been told the oil already was pledged to British, French and American companies.

General George Argesanu, 56, one of Rumania's outstanding soldiers and known as a "tough disciplinarian," became the new premier. The ministry of interior, in charge of the nation's police, was given to General Ion Ilicu, a close personal friend of the king. General Gabriel Marinescu, known as a bitter opponent of the Iron Guard and as a friend of France and Great Britain, took over the important vital post of war minister.

All other cabinet ministries remained as they were under Calinescu.

Officials issued a list of those killed in the plot. It was headed by the name of Dumitru Dumitrescu, a lawyer who was said to have succeeded Corneliu Zea Codreanu as Iron Guard leader after Codreanu was killed Dec. 1 in what officials said was an attempted break from Rumanian-Sarat prison.

The announcement said Dumitrescu took part in a terrorist plot last January to overthrow the Rumanian government and kill Calinescu, then minister of interior, who was blamed by the Iron Guard for the death of Codreanu and 13 of his followers.

Brother Killed Self
Among 12 members of the organization who were said to have committed suicide after being arrested in the January outbreak was Dumitrescu's brother.

Dumitrescu, however, escaped and fled to Czechoslovakia, the announcement said, after hiding guns and ammunition in the homes of associates.

It said he returned secretly from the Ukraine six weeks ago to organize nine friends in a secret Iron Guard assassination-band which reclaimed the hidden arsenal.

Dumitrescu, the announcement said, carefully planned the killing of the premier and led the shooting himself.

Although a communique said "no foreign complications" had been found in the plot, Rumanians nervously watched the frontiers. Troops were held to barracks throughout the country and frontier guards were strengthened.

Officials Watchful
Not only in the capital, but throughout the nation also police efforts were concentrated on preventing any response to the cry, "the time has come for revenge" shouted over the radio by one Iron Guardist during brief occupation of a broadcasting station.

After the slaying, the Iron Guardists were said to have sped in two automobiles to the radio studio. There they seized the microphone.

During the tumult, in which a woman announcer, was said to have fainted, the wounded doorman gave the alarm which brought police and troops. They surrounded the building and captured a group of youths on the first floor.

Two more were arrested at the scene of the shooting, only five minutes' walk from Cotroceni castle, where King Carol is living.

LaFollette and Wiley Opposed to Embargo Changes

constitutional amendment calling for a referendum to the people before war is declared, except in case of invasion or threatened invasion.

The entire house of representatives delegation from Wisconsin opposes repeal of the arms embargo, but is not yet unanimous on "cash and carry" for other commodities and on limitation of the special session to settlement of the neutrality issue.

On requiring fighting countries to come in their ships with cash to get any commodities, other than munitions banned by the arms embargo, Keefe, Oshkosh Republican, Schafer and Thill, Milwaukee Republicans, Hull, Black River Falls Progressive, Hawks, Horicon Republican, and Gehrmann, Mellen Progressive, have declared themselves as favoring an embargo on everything including medical supplies and food, to warring nations.

Murray, Waupaca Republican, is not yet ready to state his opinion on "cash and carry" on everything from food to the materials from which implements of war may be made.

Johns, Algoma Republican, said he was opposed to "trading human beings for profit."

"America can easily get along without this kind of profit," he declared.

"We want to keep out of this war as long as we can. If we do get into it, I do not want to pick up an American boy on some foreign battlefield and find he was shot with a bullet fired in America."

Whether it be sold under international law or 'cash and carry'.

District for Neutrality
The congressman reported his district "now is overwhelmingly for maintaining the present neutrality law." He reported that several thousand letters received were 99 per cent for the law and the other one per cent for "cash and carry" properly regulated.

Pointing out he voted to retain the present law at the last session in congress, Johns said:

"I listened with interest to what the president had to say. Condensed, the president says to repeal the present embargo and go back to international law. Then, if our ships insist on going into warring zones, we can by executive order, prohibit them from doing so, and they will then operate at their own risk."

"The trouble with this is, that it will then be too late. Such an order is not exact under the present act, and the safest way is to keep it that way."

Bolles, Janesville Republican, suggests that the United States sell anything (except munitions) on a "come and get it, with cash," basis, so that food, clothing, etc., the contraband of war, can be sold to any country, belligerent or otherwise, so long as "it will in no way involve the credit of the United States."

Almost everything but ostrich feathers is now declared contraband by either England or Germany.

On keeping congress in session indefinitely, as recommended by some Republicans, the Wisconsin delegation again differs.

Want Congress To Adjourn
Gehrmann didn't even bring his office force to Washington, and thinks congress should adjourn as soon as it settles the neutrality issue. His Progressive colleague, Hull, thinks on the other hand, that congress should take up the farm debt situation and other agricultural problems, and Murray, Republican, agrees with Hull, Keefe, Bolles, Johns and Thill (who hedges slightly, because he thinks the president should be watched by congress, but who also thinks that this session is a waste of taxpayers' money), think that the neutrality issue should be settled, and then congress should adjourn.

Hull and Schafer, agree with Wiley that congress should remain in continuous session. Schafer has a lot of ideas about "showing up that ex-international banker in the White House" which he would like congress to explore.

LaFollette would settle the neutrality question and then decide whether congress should remain in session longer, the decision to be dependent upon the situation then existing.

The Progressive senator says his mail comes from the entire country, from coast to coast and all in between, and that it nearly all is in favor of retaining the arms embargo and that he believes the president will be defeated on this issue. Mail reaching Wisconsin congressmen also is overwhelmingly against repeal of the arms embargo.

Two others committed suicide after taking refuge in a unoccupied home on Boulevard Bratiana.

Youths Carry Out Profitable Scheme

Chicago—(AP)—Three school boys found atop a four-story building in the loop explained to police they were pigeon hunters.

They said they made regular trips downtown, climbed fire escapes to the rooftop hunting grounds and in three months captured 1,500 birds which they sold at $1 a dozen, dressed.

They carried the pigeons away alive in zurlap bags, then offered their customers "fresh goods." Their only expenses: catfare and bags of peanuts for bait.

of a new neutrality bill which, among other things, would repeal the embargo and enact the six points of the administration program.

These points embrace the "cash and carry" system requiring belligerents to pay cash here for all commodities and take them away in their own ships, restrict American merchant vessels entering warring zones, prevent American citizens from traveling on belligerent ships, bar war credits to warring nations, regulate collection of funds in the United States for belligerents, and maintain a licensing system for arms transactions.

May Broaden Scope
President Roosevelt's efforts to limit the special session of congress to neutrality law revision appeared likely today to meet opposition from some New Dealers in the senate.

Senator Lee (D-Okla.), an administration supporter, served notice that he intended to seek immediate action on two bills designed to prevent "excessive" war profits.

Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he planned to call the senate steering committee into session either today or tomorrow to propose an agreement that no bills be acted upon until the neutrality question is settled.

At the same time, Senator Schwellenbach (D-Wash.), a supporter of the president, said it was likely the senate would discuss the possibility of halting the shipment of war supplies to Japan.

Chairman LaFollette (P-Wis.) of the senate civil liberties committee said, nearby, that an investigation of employers' associations in California, projected earlier by the committee, would go ahead as scheduled.

Only two measures were introduced in the house on the first day of the special session.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy (D-N. Y.) proposed that the president endeavor to effect a conference of neutral nations.

Representative Reed (R-Ill.) introduced a resolution to fix the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving. President Roosevelt has said he would set the holiday for the third Thursday by proclamation.

CHILD LOSES FOOT
Kenosha—(AP)—Thomas, the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fliess, Sr., lost his right foot when he was caught in a corn cutter on the Fliess farm.

In continuous session. Schafer has a lot of ideas about "showing up that ex-international banker in the White House" which he would like congress to explore.

LaFollette would settle the neutrality question and then decide whether congress should remain in session longer, the decision to be dependent upon the situation then existing.

The Progressive senator says his mail comes from the entire country, from coast to coast and all in between, and that it nearly all is in favor of retaining the arms embargo and that he believes the president will be defeated on this issue. Hungary Interns Large Number of Polish Soldiers

Wave of Looting and Destruction in Parts of Poland

BY ELMER W. PETERSON
Vereshke, Hungary (at the Polish Frontier)—(AP)—The final internment of thousands of Polish soldiers and officers, routed by the German and Soviet Russian invasions, was started today here on Hungarian soil.

Meanwhile, German units consolidated their occupation of frontier points. As fleeing Poles moved down one side of the Carpathians, the conquerors of Poland climbed the other toward the strategic border passes.

Reports on how the Germans and Russians would divide the Polish Carpathians still were confused. Long processions of Polish infantrymen and cavalrymen, with their guns and supply carts, moved through darkened frontier villages before dawn, enroute to internment camps.

Refugees coming through the Carpathian passes brought tales of wild rule over a small section of Poland by roving bands of Ukrainians whose signal for action apparently was the start last Sunday of the Russian occupation.

Much Looting
There were stories of day-long battles between Ukrainians and Polish police, of Poles and Jews alike killed in a wave of looting and destruction which completed the havoc started by German bombing planes. Entire villages were said to have been burned.

Polish officers arriving on Hungarian soil told of escaping from between the closing jaws of the German-Russian vise only to come upon small villages which "dropped with blood from the activities of the terrorist bands."

How the terrorists obtained their arms and ammunition was a mystery.

A young cavalry officer told of flight from the Lwow district only two hours before arrival of the Russians.

"Between Lwow and Stryl, to the south," he said, "we found the entrance to the village of Mikolajow barred by an enormous sign reading: 'Heil Hitler! Hail Ukrainian Republic!'"

"In this village we found savage butchery of racial Poles and Jews—men, women and children alike."

"We found the proprietor of the hotel with his throat cut."

"We restored order as best we could, shooting all terrorists we could find before continuing on. It was a terrible scene of death and destruction."

Ukrainians were reported to have taken possession of Lwow, Stryl and Stanislavow and for a time had their own government.

Dykstra Suggests Future Date for Military Training

Madison—(AP)—Stressing difficulties incident to immediate adoption of a compulsory military training program, President Clarence A. Dykstra, acting for the University of Wisconsin regents, today urged the legislature to consider carefully a pending R. G. T. bill.

"The board," Dykstra said in letters to the legislators, "believes unimpaired that if this law is to go into effect the date of operation should be set well into the future so that proper arrangements may be made to prospective students and proper provision made as to facility and staff for carrying out the military program."

The bill providing for compulsory training of freshmen and sophomores was passed by the senate and now is before the assembly.

Assembly Acts to Plug Loopholes in Cigaret Tax Law construction of the Wisconsin Valley Improvement company's Little Eau Pleine reservoir in central Wisconsin. The measure was sent to governor Heil.

It grouped into one statute all changes made in the improvement company's enabling act since it was first passed in 1907, granting authority to acquire and maintain dams on the Wisconsin river to produce uniform flow of water for power, navigation and flood control purposes.

The bill would make one outstanding change by permitting the company, in establishing a flowage, to acquire 85 per cent of the land in the entire district affected; rather than 65 per cent in each township, as formerly required.

Bill Proposes to Stop Foreclosures For Next 2 Years

Legislature Considers Moratorium to Save Farmers' Property

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Although an early adjournment of the legislature may stifle it, a proposal for what was called a "radical" farm mortgage moratorium law drew animated support and disapproval at a hearing before the assembly agriculture committee Wednesday afternoon. The committee decided to hear further arguments on the bill next week with the senate agriculture committee.

Sponsored by Assemblyman Walter Cook of Clark county, a Republican, the bill would institute the most liberal moratorium policy ever proposed in Wisconsin, and by its terms largely replace the present moratorium law.

Cook said the bill was aimed not at private mortgage lenders in Wisconsin, such as banks and insurance companies, but at the federal land bank whose policies he called inhumane, unsound and unfair.

While the present law under a system of mediation boards provides for mediation and compromise and extension of foreclosure, scaling down of interest and principal payments, under the discretion of the court, Cook's bill if passed would prohibit any court from allowing a foreclosure judgment, and thus no sale of premises, under these circumstances.

The owner or members of his family reside upon or operate the farm.

The owner pays current taxes when they become due and payable. The owner keeps insurance in force.

The owner pays the mortgage interest during the period of the effectiveness of the law at the rate of 2 per cent monthly, with the interest to be paid monthly.

The law would be effective from passage until July 1, 1941, and provides, however, that the provisions will not abrogate the rights of the mortgagee to receive the rate of interest provided in the mortgage contract upon the final sale or redemption of the property.

Cook said that he introduced the bill with the support of Governor Nell, whom he quoted as saying that the legislature should pass a "law to stop every foreclosure in Wisconsin."

The author maintained that foreclosures by the federal land bank, which he claimed represent a great majority of current farm foreclosures today, could be halted under his bill, because the state legislature controls the circuit court and by the terms of the bill would prohibit the courts from granting foreclosures on mortgages held by the federal lending agency.

Other committee members, and opponents, doubted his claim, maintaining that federal laws in cases of conflict take precedence over state statutes, whatever the nature of the latter.

Lawrence Professor Observed Europe Making Ready for War

Getting off a train at night to find a city "blackout" and locating a hotel only because it was near the railroad station and he had been there before—watching the French reservists pouring towards the German border—carrying a life belt constantly on board boat, even while eating—such are scenes and experiences that Dr. Louis C. Baker, professor of modern languages at Lawrence college, has to look back on.

The experiences occurred a comparatively short time ago, in the latter part of August, in fact, as Dr. Baker was concluding a summer's visit on the continent.

Dr. Baker went over to Europe this summer as director of a European tour; the official tour was finished Aug. 10, but the Lawrence college professor decided to stay on awhile longer and it was during this "post tour" that things began to happen.

He was in Germany when the pact with Russia was signed. Of German reaction to it, he says: "During the summer, the German people appeared very disconsolate. They feared war and seemed to think that France, England and probably Russia were preparing to attack them. When the pact with Russia was announced, the effect was noticeable. People began smiling again on the streets of Berlin. They felt the danger of war was over."

Hope For Peace
 German people with whom Dr. Baker talked hoped for peace but believed that Danzig should be returned to the Reich, either peacefully or by force. They could see no reason why it should not become part of Germany again, since it is a German city.

Of attitudes towards Hitler, Dr. Baker remarks: "Many of the older people are inclined to shrug their shoulders as though to say they aren't so sure But he has the younger people behind him, solidly."

In England, in the last remaining days preceding the outbreak of hostilities, Dr. Baker found "great preparations for war," compared with the seeming indifference of the French.

England's preparations were not only openly active but there was a careful, systematized effort to train the civilian population to protect itself against air raids. Each "ward" or neighborhood of London had its own air raid organization, with leaders to direct the movements in case of an attack. Englishmen feel, Dr. Baker says, that they will have to fight ultimately and they might as well do it now before their enemies grow stronger. The English attitude, Dr. Baker found, is "we must fight to save the empire."

French Apathetic
 Frenchmen did "not seem particularly enthusiastic" about war, Dr. Baker says. Where the English people had long since been equipped with gas masks, Frenchmen did not call for their equipment until only a few days before war was declared. "They hoped there would be no war."

Dr. Baker sailed on the Empress

SAW WAR PRELUDE

Dr. Louis C. Baker, professor of modern languages at Lawrence college, watched European preparations for war during the latter part of August as he was concluding a tour of the continent. He sailed 12 hours before war was declared, on an English ship that took a circuitous route to reach Canada.

Of Britain 12 hours before war was declared.

"Aboard ship there were rumors of war, but we weren't certain until we heard the king of England speak over the radio. The boat took a northerly course, zig-zagging a great deal, a movement that made many of the passengers sea sick."

As soon as it was known that France and England had declared war on Germany the boat was placed under war orders, Dr. Baker relates. Passengers had to carry life belts with them constantly, at the movies, during walks on decks, at dinner time. If they were without them, officers forced them to turn back to their rooms and obtain the belts. Sea sickness was common, because of the frequent sharp turns made by the ship. The table to which Dr. Baker was assigned was set for 10 people. Only three showed up during the first few days.

"We must have taken quite a northerly course across, because we sighted land on the coast of Labrador. We were 26 hours late docking at our port, apparently because of the zig-zag course we had taken."

Kaukauna Eleven To Begin Defense Of Title Tonight

High School Squad Will Clash With Bluejays At Menasha

Kaukauna — Tonight Kaukauna High school griders will embark on the first of their six conference games, beginning defense of their 1938 Northwestern conference title at Menasha. Winners of the championship five times in the last ten years, the Littlemen have never been able to repeat.

Last night's final practice session was devoted mostly to pass defense. In Richard Sheleski the Bluejays have a strong throwing threat. Towards the end of the session the first and second teams went through a light scrimmage.

Hampered by injuries, it is likely that Bill Danner, sophomore fullback who started last week against St. Mary's of Menasha, will see little action tonight because of a hip ailment. Coach Little has been grooming Ralph Doering, senior reserve, for the position this week, and Doering has shown no small ball carrying and blocking ability.

With Willis Rasquette, undressed with a shoulder injury the brunt of the Kaw attack will fall on Karl Gorkana, Phelan Fernal and George Steffen, all fast halfbacks. With Gorkana hardly able to lift his passing arm, these duties will probably fall to Fernal.

Because of injuries the starting backfield won't be known until game time, but in the line Leo Rohan and Bill Alger will be at the wings. John Wendell and John Velte at tackle, Ray Hurst and Steve Andreyeski at guard and Captain Leo Wolfe at center.

Contributions Coming In for Chinese Help

Kaukauna — Contributions have begun to come in for the bowl of rice fund, according to Reuben Rosenblatt, committee chairman for the second year. An appeal has been made to all Kaukauna organizations to contribute, the only way which the money will be raised this year. Last fall theater benefits were held.

Those making donations up to now are Knights of Columbus, Holy Name society of Holy Cross church, Rotary club, Lions club, Catholic Order of Foresters, Holy Cross court, and Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Seven Officers Named For Rotary Boy Scouts

Kaukauna — Seven new officers have been named by Scoutmaster Wallace Mooney to help run Rotary Troop No. 20, and will begin their duties as the scouts meet Wednesday at Park school. They are Glen Miller, Marvin Treffin and William Knapp, patrol leaders; Ralph Mooney, senior patrol leader, and Ray Nagel, Jr., Carl Hilgenberg and John Velte, junior assistant scoutmasters.

Girl Scouts Will Make Plans for Fall, Winter

Kaukauna — Girl scouts will hold their first meeting of the year Wednesday, gathering at 7:15 at the Legion hall, according to Miss Lotte McCarty, scoutmistress. Fall and winter plans will be outlined and publication of a troop paper discussed.

Duck Stamps Available At Post Office for $1

Kaukauna — Duck stamps may now be bought at the post office for $1. R. H. McCarty, postmaster, has announced. These stamps must be shown on request of any state or federal game enforcement officer.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Mrs. Clifford Velte Named New President of Kaukauna American Legion Auxiliary

Kaukauna — Mrs. Clifford Velte was elected president of American Legion Auxiliary as the group met last night at Legion hall. Other officers elected were Mrs. Joyce Schaefer, first vice president, Mrs. Pearl Eimmerman, second vice president, and Mrs. Walton Cooper, treasurer. Mrs. Velte will appoint the other officers. Cards were played, with Mrs. Anna Schubring winning the bridge prize and Miss Agnes Junk the sheephead award. Mrs. Pearl Wagnitz was chairman of the social committee.

About 100 persons are expected Tuesday evening at Martens hall as Veterans of Foreign Wars entertain those who assisted in making the June water regatta a success. A 6:30 dinner will be served, followed by a program. Invitations have been sent out, but the committee emphasizes that those who helped at the regatta, and are not on the mailing list, are welcome to attend.

Mrs. George Dogot was named regent and Mrs. Emil Franz vice regent as Knights of Columbus Ladies elected officers yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Cyril Robedeau is the new secretary and Mrs. J. W. Weyenberg takes over as treasurer. Cards followed the business meeting, with prizes going to Mrs. T. A. Ryan in contract bridge, Mrs. Ferd Melner in auction, bridge, Mrs. John Pfeifer and Mrs. Peter Keller in sheephead and Mrs. George R. Greenwood in five hundred. Mrs. Anton Berkers was chairman, assisted by Mrs. A. E. Bachhuber, Mrs. Michael Courtney, Mrs. L. Crevier, Mrs. R. J. Deloria and Mrs. Ed Derricks.

The Altar society of Holy Cross church will sponsor a rummage sale in the Haessly building on W. Wisconsin avenue Tuesday. Auxiliary Unit Hears Report on Convention

Clintonville — A report on the state convention of the American Legion auxiliary was given by Mrs. F. C. Welch at a meeting of the Clintonville unit Monday evening. Mrs. Gilbert Felschow, president, Mrs. Welch, vice president, and several other members attended sessions of the state convention held at Oshkosh in August.

The auxiliary voted to have girls of the junior auxiliary become members of the drum and bugle corps, which has heretofore been composed of only the sons of legion members.

It was announced that next month will be devoted to the annual membership campaign, which is to be completed by Armistice day. The meeting was followed by the serving of refreshments by Mrs. Gilbert Felschow and Mrs. Sylvia Kesting.

Mrs. Ray Donaldson, Mrs. James Kuester, Mrs. Ralph Laney and Mrs. John Kafka were hostesses at a 6:30 dinner Monday evening at Hotel Marston. The meal was followed by eight tables of contract bridge. Honors went to Mrs. Howard Anthes, Mrs. Lloyd Scheider, Mrs. Ben Rathke and Mrs. Clarence Barker.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Johannes returned home Monday evening from Chicago and Wheaton, Ill., where they visited relatives and friends since Friday. Their son Delbert remained to attend Wheaton college, where he is a freshman. They were accompanied as far as Milwaukee by the former's mother, Mrs. H. J. Johannes of this city, who spent several days with her daughter, Mrs. Max Kujawski, and other relatives.

Roosevelt's Popularity With Voters Mounts Sharply Since Outbreak of War in Europe

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
Princeton, N. J.—With Congress and the nation poised on the threshold of a great debate on the neutrality issue, President Roosevelt's popularity with the rank and file of American voters has increased sharply since the outbreak of war in Europe. Coinciding with the President's "limited emergency" moves of the last few weeks and his appeal for national unity, the American Institute's monthly index of Presidential popularity shows a five-point rise since August and finds Roosevelt nearly as popular today as when he was re-elected by a landslide in 1936.

Last month 56.6 per cent of major party voters in an Institute survey approved of Roosevelt as President. Today the figure has jumped to 61.0 per cent. He was re-elected in 1936 with 62.5 per cent.

Throughout the South and Far West—Democratic strongholds—the President's popularity remains about the same as in previous surveys, with slight increases. The President's chief gains in the last month have come principally in the industrial Middle Atlantic and East Central states and in the Mid-West farm area. In those places the percentage of voters approving him as President today has jumped from 6 to 10 points.

	Approve of Roosevelt as President Today	Last Month	Points Change
New England	53%	51%	+2
Middle Atlantic	58	54	+4
East Central	59	51	+8
West Central	60	55	+5
South	72	70	+2
Far West	65	64	+1

A question which remains to be answered is whether the increase in support for Roosevelt's present policies will have an important effect on third term sentiment. Last month's survey found that whereas 56.6 per cent approved of Roosevelt as President at that time, only 40 per cent said they would vote for him for a third term. A survey which will show the trend of third term sentiment since the outbreak of war is now being completed by the Institute.

Foreign Crises Aid Popularity

One probable explanation for the sudden spurt in Presidential support is that the Administration's foreign policy has been one of the most popular policies of the whole New Deal. Institute studies have found that whereas the rank and file of Democrats and Republicans disagree sharply on many vital domestic issues, they are in substantial agreement over foreign policy. And in the last few weeks, foreign policy has occupied so much public attention that domestic issues, with their noncommittal divisions of opinion, have been largely thrust aside.

However, the rise in Roosevelt popularity should come as no surprise to students who in the past have observed the effect of foreign crises on the prestige of the Administration. At the time of the Sudeten crisis in 1938 when Roosevelt sent peace pleas to Hitler and Mussolini, his popularity rose six points in less than a month.

Profit-Sharing Plan Favored at Utilities' Confab

5 Points Stressed; Hockings Vice Chairman of Accounting Group

Milwaukee—(P)—A customer-utility profit-sharing plan was proposed today at the convention of the accounting section of the Wisconsin Utilities association.

In outlining his proposal, A. J. Colbert, chief of the accounts and finance department of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission, said he believed it would simplify rate making procedure, eliminate difficulties of the depreciation problem, make expensive appraisals unnecessary, reduce regulation costs, and place rates on actual, rather than theoretical requirements.

He presented five points which were described as only a nucleus of his plan. They call for:

Establishment of the total revenues which a utility is entitled to charge in rates as the sum of operating expenses.

Reduction of rates on a graduated basis if at the end of an agreed-upon period the percentage earned on the book value of common stock exceeded the agreed-upon percentage.

Establishment by stipulation of a maximum percentage return on common stock equity and adjustment of rates so as not to exceed such maximum.

Periodic Review
Increased rates, upon application of the utility, if percentage returns on common stock equity were less than the agreed-upon figure.

Periodic review of the agreed-upon basic percentage return so that it would not get out of line with the money market.

Asserting he expressed his own views and not those of the commission, Colbert admitted difficult problems would be encountered before such a plan could be inaugurated but added:

"If utilities and regulatory authorities approach the problems in a spirit of fair play, with an attitude of honest recognition of the interest of all parties, I am confident that equitable profit-sharing plans can be developed."

Lester Wuelner of the Wisconsin Fuel and Light Company, Manitowish, was elected chairman of the accounting section. C. E. Hockings of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, Appleton, was named vice chairman.

Consumers Power

Employees Strike

Bay City, Mich.—(P)—CIO union employees of the Consumers Power company, supplying gas and electricity in more than 1,000 southern Michigan communities, were called out on strike today, but there was no immediate interruption of service.

Monroe Causley, president of the Utility Workers Organizing Committee in Consumers' plants, called the walkout effective at 8 a. m., after collapse of negotiations between the CIO union, the management, and the state labor mediation board.

CIO strikes in 1937 twice left industrial cities of the Saginaw valley without electric power. Union spokesmen said no attempt to pull switches would be made in the present strike unless "strikebreakers" were employed.

Involved in the dispute are conflicting claims for bargaining rights by the UWOC and the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The company serves an area with a population of nearly 2,000,000.

Clapper Scores Secrecy of Conference in White House

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Republicans in congress are determined to keep congress in session continuously during this crisis. That is a wise decision, especially in view of the way things are going here. I mean the secrecy—yes the censorship—which the White House smacked down on a conference of the utmost importance to the American people.

Raymond Clapper transpired in 24 hours of discussion. If any of those present leak, they break their word.

That is all that is officially known about this important discussion which concerned our relation to the European war. That plus some pious generalities about everyone wanting to keep the United States at peace.

If we get into this war, you will have to fight it and pay for it. But now in the discussions here you are told only what it is thought good for you to hear. It is, for the time being, not your crisis but the private crisis of the handful who were pledged to secrecy in the White House. Some of those present were warned in advance not to allow themselves to be so bound. They submitted nevertheless.

So, while waiting for the inevitable leaks to occur, while waiting for some of those present to break their word and divulge the inside proceedings, I am thinking about some of the things that went on in secret back in 1916 and which helped lead us into the first world war. The public didn't know it at the time because President Wilson was making speeches about how "we must keep our resources and our strength untouched by this war."

Secrecy Like That Freed World War

At the same time his special ambassador in Europe, Colonel House, was rattling between London and Paris, telling the British and French that the United States wanted them to "help us to help them."

There was some neat secret diplomacy going on then. Colonel House, on behalf of the American government, signed a memorandum with the British foreign minister, Viscount Grey, in Feb. 1916, which said: "Colonel House told me that President Wilson was ready, on hearing from France and England that the moment was opportune, to propose that a conference should be summoned to put an end to the war. Should the allies accept this proposal and should Germany refuse it, the United States would probably enter the war against Germany."

"Colonel House expressed the opinion that, if such a conference met, it would secure peace on terms not unfavorable to the allies; and if it failed to secure peace, the United States would leave the conference as belligerent on the side of the allies."

That is how things were done. A little half-pint ambassador telling the British foreign minister on what conditions the United States would enter the war against Germany. That was in 1916, just a year before we went in.

Such Meetings Are Everybody's Business

Another thing, a few days after Colonel House thus offered to take the United States into the war, President Wilson called in a group of senators and representatives. They met very early in order to escape the newspaper men. It was called the sunrise conference. All present were pledged to secrecy. One leaked and said Wilson hinted that he was arranging the intervention of the United States in the war.

That's one reason I don't like secret conferences on such important matters as this, which concern every person in the United States. In view of past history, all too recent and tragic, the public deserves to know what is going on. Are we being committed, again to something under cover of secrecy?

Let congress stay here and turn on the light.

THE PRESIDENT BEFORE THE CONGRESS

Yesterday before the joint session Mr. Roosevelt became again something of the statesman he was during his first year in office.

It was not merely his handling of the question of the embargo of arms and munitions because sincere people may differ widely as to the best employable means to obtain the desired end, but he delivered a well rounded and conceived message as an entity dealing with the most bothersome aspects of our relations to the warring nations and how best to prevent our people from becoming indignant and then infuriated at one side or the other and at the same time maintain a condition as close to normalcy here at home as is possible.

And Mr. Roosevelt is apparently through with the Reds. He abandons the career of Fellow Traveler. He has assigned 150 men to law enforcement agencies in order to treat with treason here at home. Neither he nor Pinko Ickes nor the Labor Madame with the Red skirt would listen to Mr. Dies a year ago begging for help and warning at the same time that the fabric of our government was being seriously gnawed at by a certain class of rodents. But Stalin opened his eyes. Most of Stalin's victims get their eyes opened before a firing squad.

The President dealt with Americans traveling in war zones on alien ships, Americans sending cargoes abroad on American ships, the correction of a previous laxity in respect to payment for purchases in America and that still other and always dear and genuine subject, the preservation of an honest and forthright citadel of human rights upon this continent that can be, when fairly and intelligently directed and advised, even strengthened by the fact that others resort to the sword.

Mr. Roosevelt's statesmanship of 1933, that went into an eclipse for six years, required another crisis, another great peril, to return it to sober thought.

Thus the European war may have served a considerable purpose in jarring our chief executive out of his day-dreaming just as certainly as it has separated him from the wily conspirators who had convinced him that Reds were kind, sweet, lovable but greatly misunderstood people.

ATROCITIES AND DESTRUCTION OF WAR

If the English propaganda writers have been reading American columnists they may see fit to smother the atrocity stories. Perhaps they may be assisted in this decision by the fact that Hitler, remembering 1914, has already beaten them to it.

The German army invited American correspondents to view numerous bodies in Poland that had been horribly mutilated. But in truth, of course, the correspondents didn't know who did the mutilating. They didn't know whether the men had been mutilated before or after death. There was no means of ascertaining even whether they were Germans or Poles.

And yet the incident closely parallels 1914 and the German rush through Belgium. Then a mutilated body or even a story of mutilation was enough. The German soldier became not only a Hun but the worst Hun that was ever let loose. And Germans in this country, at first skeptical but later submerged under a mountain of propaganda, began to wonder from what sort of a hideous branch of the human family they had descended.

We think we should still remain very skeptical concerning stories of bombing villages and wantonly visiting death upon a civilian population.

It is our business to remember that each side is entitled to bomb trains, bridges, and villages, too, if soldiers are billeted there.

Bombing railroad centers in the effort to destroy essential transportation and bombing industrial plants are indulged in by all sides. Just how the civilian population can be missed when they live around the railroad junctions or in close proximity to the industrial plants is the hard, and cruel, problem. Perhaps it would be a good idea for them to move.

The general devastation visited by one army upon the country through which it tramps must be expected. We up north here who may hold our breath and shake our heads today sorrowfully at some picture of destruction should remember how our grandfathers cheered Sherman for burning most of Georgia to the ground. And those same forefathers of ours thought that General Phil Sheridan was a nonpareil because after he had scourged the gentle and fertile Shenandoah valley he cryptically remarked, "If a crow flies up that valley now he will have to carry his grub with him."

A close study of what is called "the art of war" will fit one better to understand his own feelings as events that are natural to armed conflict may otherwise anger him.

WISCONSIN STUMBLING BLOCKS

While flames of war are licking up the curtains and tapestries in that great building we call the world noble citizens of Wisconsin began fiddling around before an assembly committee at Madison protesting with bated breath against the horrible idea of making students at the University, who are maintained and educated there at a heavy cost to the taxpayers, learn enough about the rudiments of military training so they will not be in everybody's way if war breaks out.

Mr. Hones of the Farmers Equity Union and a former university regent was typical of the crimped and stuffy argument that men can even make under circumstances such as prevail in the world when they blind themselves to the need of speed, training, efficiency and understanding in order to make an army effective as the black clouds roll.

Mr. Hones said he had three boys whom he would be glad to send to a training camp if it were necessary for the defense of their country "but I won't send them to the University if it has compulsory training," and that certainly should take a studied prize of some sort for mental brilliance or mulishness.

In case of necessity our training camps are going to be packed by a lot of boys who know nothing about the military. The officers in charge will look wildly about for assistance in the way of men who at least know a little something about the business. But Mr. Hones insists that if his boys may be given such training while they are incidentally educated at the University it is just going to make him mad and he won't play.

Mr. Friedrich of the Milwaukee Federated Trades Council also had some gems of thought. It was his notion that those who proposed this bill were expecting to set up a military group that would be the rulers of the country. He thought that if we looked the world over we would find the nations with the most military were those with the least democracy.

The gentleman is mistaken. England with the greatest navy in the world, and a navy is militarism too, is one of the greatest democracies. France that is said to have the most efficient army that ever tramped the earth is a pretty decent democracy. But China thought along the Friedrich line.

Mr. Friedrich should learn that democracy was in the safest hands when we had most troops on these shores and that a military group only becomes a menace to the nation instead of serving as an agency of the civil authorities. When 20 per cent of the man power in this country was in uniform in 1865 democracy was actually at an all time high. And the same holds true of 1919 when four million Americans were uniforms.

With our institutions such as they are we have no genuine reason to fear the military. But we have a lot of reason for fear of consequences when in a period of general alarm and great concern men like Hones and Friedrich can talk as idly as they do.

THE GERMAN ARMY—AND OURS

Prince Oskar of royal Hohenzollern blood and grandson of the Kaiser was killed in action in Poland.

This, with further items concerning Hitler's attitude toward royalty, reveals something of the reason why the German army today has seemed more impressive even than 25 years ago.

Prince Oskar was serving as a lowly Second Lieutenant whereas under the monarchy one of the royal blood was invariably started out with the rank of Colonel.

He was slain while in the extremely dangerous business of leading a company of infantry, whereas under the monarchy he would have been safely ensconced in a deep dugout at the rear playing pinocchio.

Via a Berlin cable we learn that eight royal princes are serving with the German army and their assignments indicate they have accepted even more than their share of risk and danger.

Seldom does such a harsh rule exist in a democracy. Its politically high born get top rank and safe places, often by specifically designed influence.

The American army and our government can learn something about morale and efficiency by observing the extent to which pull, influence and "quality blood" have been held in restraint in the creation of the German war machine.

The waffle wagon, painted white,
Was hauled along its lazy course
By a contented patient horse.
We hailed its coming with delight,

That matched his saucy, flaring hat.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—On Fifth Avenue and in Rockefeller Center, pleasantly away from Tin Pan Alley where you'd expect to find them, are the Svengalis of Swing—the men who give you your Benny Goodmans, Artie Shaws and Larry Clintons.

There are about 30,000 dance orchestras in the United States. Only about 200 of them are Big Time. The reason they are Big Time is because the Swing Svengalis decree it to be. Whether they choose the best of the 30,000 bands, no man can say. There may be a hundred better "hot" bands than Benny Goodman's. The point is that Benny got the nod from the Svengalis, which is far more important than merely having a better band.

Mike Nidorf is one of the specialists in band making. Two years ago Larry Clinton was virtually an unknown. Today, in a brief 18 months, he is Big. That is some of Mike Nidorf's doings. Artie Shaw didn't just happen. Nidorf was behind that success, too. Less than a year ago who had been at a spot that has a wire, that is, a spot that has an arrangement with the broadcasting chains. In this manner, even if you tune in only occasionally, you become familiar with the new name—Larry Clinton, Artie Shaw, Glenn Miller. Psychology gets to work. Listeners assume that only the cream of talent is being offered them. Soon they are accepting the new bands as tops. The booking agents proceed carefully with the build-up, sending the new band out on "one nighters," booking them into theatres, getting recording engagements for them. In a short time—as witness most of the Name bands of today—the orchestras may be able, as Glenn Miller is today, to command $1,500 a night and, in the case of Artie Shaw, $10,000 a week.

The band makers don't do it with mirrors. They do it with wires—wires and smart booking. The wires are the ones that run to broadcasting stations, carrying a band's music to a hook-up—"You are listening to the music of Glenn Miller and his orchestra," etc. When Nidorf or one of the other Swing Svengalis decide to build a band to popularity—which means big money for both the band and the band maker—they back it into a spot that has a wire, that is, a spot that has an arrangement with the broadcasting chains. In this manner, even if you tune in only occasionally, you become familiar with the new name—Larry Clinton, Artie Shaw, Glenn Miller. Psychology gets to work. Listeners assume that only the cream of talent is being offered them. Soon they are accepting the new bands as tops. The booking agents proceed carefully with the build-up, sending the new band out on "one nighters," booking them into theatres, getting recording engagements for them. In a short time—as witness most of the Name bands of today—the orchestras may be able, as Glenn Miller is today, to command $1,500 a night and, in the case of Artie Shaw, $10,000 a week.

Last spring few people had heard of Woody Herman. By winter he'll be a Big Name band. Svengali Nidorf is bringing him along as he did the others. Last spring there was no Bob Zurke's band. Keep your eyes on him. There are a few exceptions, a few cases of great dance bands, like Guy Lombardo's, that came slowly up the hard way by having what-it-takes and delivering it until the public came to know and appreciate it.

The secret of Big Time in the dance band business is not the Sammy So-and-so has a great band. Rather it is that Mike Nidorf, or "Corky" O'Keefe (who got behind Glenn Gray), or Willard Alexander (who elected to boost Benny Goodman) or some other Swing Svengali throws himself into an organized campaign to put the band over.

Get me wound up on music and I prattle on unconsciously. For instance, the 1939-40 musical season opened at the Harrison home last night. The Bob Stevensons from around the corner were over, they being sharers of my enthusiasm for music served on platters. I became so excited I opened some of the champagne I reserve for golden wedding anniversaries and the death of rich relatives.

For music we had a few Carmen Miranda's Deca recordings (to decide if this South American girl star of "Streets of Paris" is as sensational as she is painted), the album of Hoagy Carmichael songs with Hoagy doing the vocals and Glenn Gray's orchestra playing, some Dwight Fiske and Douglas Byrd double entendre songs for spice, Artie Shaw's "Serenade to a Savage" and "Traffic Jam"—terrific!—that virtually perfect dance record of "Love For Sale" by Hal Kemp, and Russ Morgan's disc of "Wabash Blues"—one of the best jobs of Blues playing in years.

To meet the cultural needs of our souls we played Victor's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" recordings by Raymond Massey, Schubert's "Tragic" Symphony in the new version, Bloch's waxings of Copland's "Concerto in F" with Roy Bargy at the difficult piano against Paul Whiteman's orchestral background.

It is a simple thing, an evening like this; and if Europe could by some miracle have relaxed those few hours with us, she wouldn't have gone back to fighting in the morning, I betcha.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Sept. 25, 1914

The Germans were attacking the entire line of French fortifications along the eastern front from Verdun to Toul. The forts were being battered to pieces and the French attacks repulsed with heavy losses, according to a Berlin dispatch. A Paris bulletin said the Germans were reported to have lost 10,000 dead, 15,000 wounded in the battle around Verdun.

The city commissioners decided at a meeting held that afternoon that the paving for the coming year would include the following streets: Rankin from College avenue to Pacific street; Meade street from College avenue to Washington; Clark street from right of way to state road; Franklin street from Union to Durkee; Harris street from Appleton to Drew; Lawrence court, Sixth street from Walnut to Cherry; Fifth street from Walnut to Cherry; Lake street hill.

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Sept. 20, 1929

Purchase of 70 acres of land near Combined Locks as a site for a golf course was announced Thursday by the site committee of the Kaukauna Golf club. The property, which included part of the Malachi Ryan farm, was located about a mile southwest of Kaukauna. Construction of a 9-hole course was to begin immediately.

Ray Eichelberger, merchandising manager of Pettibone-Peabody company, was the new president of the Appleton Advertising club, succeeding C. F. McKay, who resigned when he accepted a position in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Formal opening of the Embassy theater, which had been remodeled, at Neenah had been announced for Friday, Sept. 27. The interior of the building had been redecorated and a vitaphone had been installed.

And listened for his cheerful note.
"Waffles! Hot waffles!" he sang out.
We ran and met him with a shout.

With fine disdain for calories
We ate a dozen sugared cakes.
I can't describe them! No one makes
A waffle succulent as these.
That I can taste in the warm glow
Of an entrancing long ago.

Gone with the hurdy-gurdy's cheer,
The horse and buggy, paving blocks,
The sound of heels on wooden walks,
Is that lost song we shall not hear.
The world is streamlined in its plan,
And it excludes the "Waffle Man."

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—President Roosevelt is losing no opportunity to play his side of the street. He is constantly telling the public about the reasons for repeal of the neutrality act.

Grover

It is a fair game. Opponents of repeal expect the debate on the issue to give them their chance to tell the public why this country should not revoke the embargo on shipment of arms to belligerents.

Strictly a press conference passes these days but what the President plants some new kiss of death upon the neutrality act. The state department and the President openly oppose the measure, since they insist it gives an advantage to Germany by shutting off from England and France the source of airplanes, munitions and other war supplies which their control of the seas should entitle them to.

One observer commented that the act was equal to giving Germany an Atlantic fleet big enough to keep British and French merchantmen from reaching America for supplies. That comment did not come from the White House but it fairly summarizes the administration attitude toward the act.

"So-Called"

When the current European war started, Mr. Roosevelt gave the neutrality act a rough boot in the breeches. His first proclamation of neutrality did not mention the law at all.

The President took pains to call that the "regular neutrality" proclamation. He wanted to demonstrate that the U. S. could have neutrality without the statute.

Then followed the proclamation under what Mr. Roosevelt described (with an open show of distaste) as the "so-called neutrality act." That is the one which, among other things, shut off arms shipments to warring nations.

Developments of the war helped also in his campaign. The "Athenia" was sunk, reviving horrid memories of "submarine atrocities" of the last war. And just to make certain that the White House had not missed the point, Steve Early, the President's secretary, reminded reporters that it should be noted that there was no question that the "Athenia" did not carry munitions.

Less direct, but even more forceful, was the President's explanation of the interpretation he had placed upon the Monroe doctrine with respect to Canada. A year ago in a speech at the dedication of a U. S.-Canadian bridge the President said that "the people of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other (than the British) empire."

"No Expansion"

A reporter asked him about the statement in the light of Canada's decision to declare herself at war with Germany.

The President insisted his statement had not meant an expansion of the meaning of the Monroe doctrine. At the time of its enunciation in 1823, he said, there was agreement that the doctrine meant not only that European countries would be forbidden further to extend their influence in this hemisphere, but also that possession of American territory should not be allowed to pass from one sovereignty to another.

At the time this last concerned only a few offshore islands and minor continental possessions of European powers. But its application now would apply to Canada.

It was a roundabout way of saying that the United States would not allow Germany to gain any foothold in the Americas, even if she should defeat England and claim her colonies in peace settlement. With equal point he heightened up the administrative argument that a neutrality act injuring England is not an especially good thing.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Well, Congress has mobilized and the war to keep America at peace is under way.

Personally I won't feel safe until it's all quiet on the Potomac once again. If Congress is as hot up over the embargo issue as the country is, this will be a tough battle. I hope they spare the non-combatants.

The big feature of the opening session was the complete "black-out" of the "must mood" by President Roosevelt. He didn't order or demand a thing. (I had it all verified and found out it really was the president speaking.)

Franklin just urged congress to be reasonable, and it impressed me a lot, because I couldn't help realizing that we live in one of the few countries where reason is a word anybody seems to understand.

The president said the main thing was to keep us out of war, and what a novelty it was to hear a modern-day ruler talking about keeping out of war instead of getting into one.

Franklin said it was silly to prohibit shipments of completed war weapons and permit shipment of unassembled parts and materials, and he sure is right. It's like refusing to sell a slingshot to Peck's bad boy and ruling that it's okay to slip him a jack-knife, a tree branch and some rubber bands.

The effect on all the windows in the neighborhood is the same.

SHARK FISHING BOOMS

San Francisco—Sharks taken in California waters in 1938 totalled 7,501,000 pounds as against 908,000 in 1937. The great increase was due to the market for shark liver oil, valued for its vitamin content.

A PERFECT ATMOSPHERE FOR THE DEBATE ON NEUTRALITY

Madison—That A. J. Opstedal, acting-director of the state bureau of personnel since the resignation of A. E. Garey, is leaning over backwards in his anxiety to win favor by getting the appointing ment to the directorship, a job he has craved for many years, and which is in Heil's power to bestow

Visiting Fox river valley politicians several times lately have brought to Madison the suggestion that Senator Kresky of Green Bay may be a candidate for attorney general on the Progressive ticket next year.

One recently pointed out that Progressives have always had difficulty in making progress in the populous valley counties, and that a probable reason is the lack of candidates on their ticket from that area. The same source suggests that Kresky could "fill the vacuum left by John Reynolds" (the Reynolds of Green Bay, several terms as attorney general, and last year headed the state party committee.)

VANDEBERG BOOMING

With the stock of Senator Vandenberg apparently rising in the Wisconsin G. O. P., notwithstanding Senator Wiley's coy bid for recognition on a favorite son basis, all indications point to a good attendance at the Vandenberg rally in Fond du Lac tomorrow. Don't be surprised, however, if there develop some wrangling among the leaders for the headship of the Vandenberg campaign.

Two likely places for sensational economy moves by the administration soon are in the motor vehicle division and the public welfare department. Complaints have been made often that too little of state relief appropriations gets to the relief workers and administrative employees in salary checks in the state and branch offices. Further, there are many people who believe that the cost of approximately $1,000,000 a year in the license division is exorbitant. It appears that Major Rickeman, the new chief, thinks so, too, and that he is laying plans for widespread dismissals there.

SENATOR DUEL

Despite the politically embarrassing circumstances of his appointment, there are a few persons acquainted with Senator Morvin Duell of Fond du Lac who are not willing to nominate him unequivocally as one of the most capable, hard thinking, and conscientious men who ever sat in the Wisconsin legislature. The tribute of his friends and his foes upon his appointment to the insurance commissioner's post was one of the most extraordinary events in legislative history. When Senator Fred Risser of Madison, who looks under the bed for a Republican every night and frequently has bad dreams about the Heil administration, arises to move for a "moratorium on politics" and votes for Duell, that, as some people say, is something.

DON'T LET COMPLEX SCARE YOU

A complex, says Webster, is an assemblage of related things; a whole made up of complicated or interrelated parts; an intricate combination. That will do for the vitamin B-complex, which seems to puzzle many readers.

What we formerly called plain vitamin B has been found to be not one vitamin but at least half a dozen well defined vitamins and perhaps another half dozen not yet clearly identified. It would be confusing to attempt to review the recent history of the vitamin B-complex and the recognition of the outstanding members of the vitamin B family. It will give a fair idea of complex to mention several of its recognized factors:

First, these four factors or components of the B-complex have been identified and are available in pure form for experimental study or for remedial use: (1) Thiamin or B1, which prevents beriberi in man and polyneuritis in animals. (2) Riboflavin, necessary for growth in chicks and rats and for prevention of ataxia in rats. Riboflavin is also called "vitamin G." According to Sherman: "When the food is poor in vitamin G for any considerable length of time, digestive disturbances, nervous depression (different from the symmetrical polyneuritis of vitamin B deficiency), general weakness and deterioration of tone, and an unhealthy (or "unthrifty") condition of the skin are apt to develop; the incidence of infectious disease is likely to be increased, vitality diminished, life shortened, and the prime of life curtailed." (3) Nicotinic acid, the factor probably preventive against pellagra in man, preventive and curative against black tongue in dogs. (4) Vitamin B6 or B12, prevents dermatitis and acromegaly in rats.

Then besides the four definitely identified factors, there are several others in the B-complex which scientific investigators believe present and more or less essential for perfect nutrition but have not yet been clearly identified. Among these are a chick dermatitis factor, a pigeon weight factor, a rat growth factor and an anti-gray hair factor—all named obviously from the effects of their absence from the diet of the animal.

It is not always possible to apply in human nutrition observations or conclusions drawn from experiments in animal nutrition. For example, cataract may be produced in young animals by giving them food adequate in other respects but lacking vitamin G (riboflavin), and if riboflavin is restored to the diet before the cataract has progressed too far it may partly clear up. Whether vitamin G deficiency or shortage in the diet of man is a cause of cataract, we do not know. But in my judgment any one who seems inclined to develop cataract should receive an optimal daily ration of riboflavin (vitamin G).

military training bill contemplates.

... Cries of distress are coming to the executive office from some of the teachers' colleges, whose halls are crowded with record numbers of enrollees, and who have less money to take care of them. Comment from the gallery after a legislator's speech this week: "They should have passed that bill to give all members a free dictionary."

Can you suggest any way to get rid of it? (M.J.M.)

Answer—Only way is to have it removed by your physician—probably it is a wen and may be removed under local anesthesia thru a minute incision which will leave scarcely any scar.

Keep Your Shirt On

I have been waiting at least a month for my copy of the new edition of "Victuals Guide" you promised to send but have heard nothing—what is your racket anyway? (M.A.)

Answer—Title of the new Little Lesson about food will be FEEDERS DIGEST. It will take the place of earlier booklets called "Guide to Right Eating" and "Nutritious and Vital." Remember, friends, the conductor of this column has some lawn bowling to attend to. You'll receive your copy, all right, as soon as we get down to your letter.

Early Symptoms

What are the first symptoms of infantile paralysis? What should one do for the patient until the doctor arrives? (J.H.)

Answer—Earliest symptoms usually indistinguishable from those of cold—say of the common respiratory infections—mild fever, headache, loss of appetite, perhaps vomiting or diarrhea, vague aches or pains in limbs and back. In any such case at any time it is wisest to keep the patient at rest in bed for 24 hours, whether you call the doctor or not.

Potassium Chloride

When you told about potassium chloride for hay fever, sinus trouble and allergic sensitivity, I tried to buy some, but at a large drug store they insisted it must be potassium chloride and tried to sell me that? (C. T.)

Answer—Five grains of potassium chloride taken dissolved in nearly a glassful of water, from four to six times a day for several days, is nearly tasteless and has brought marked relief in many cases of hay fever, sinus trouble, and other allergic conditions, including allergic skin reactions such as hives and acute eczematous outbreaks. Potassium chloride is recognized in the National Formulary; the chemical is included in the standard trade lists of large manufacturing chemists. Druggists who tried to sell you chlorate of potash when you asked for potassium chloride, are unreliable. Potassium chloride is poisonous in overdose; potassium chloride is not.

Guard Hates Hunger, Prisoners Step High

Columbus, O.—Right off the Ohio penitentiary grapevine comes this account of a man's man. A newly-appointed guard with an ex-army step delivered this ultimatum to a convict company in the prison yard:

The company marched.

Two No Trump Response Was Incorrect Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following hand caused a considerable amount of discussion:

"South, dealer.

"East-West vulnerable.

WEST

"I was South. The bidding went as follows:

South West North East

1♠ Pass 1♠ Trump Pass

2♠ Pass 4♣ Pass

3♠ Pass 4♣ (final bid) Pass

"West opened the diamond eight, which I won with the king. Having landed in a quite advantageous contract, I proceeded to mess up the timing of the hand and go down one trick. I cashed the spade king, then led to the club ace, cashed the spade ace (on which I discarded a diamond), then ruffed a spade. Next I led to the diamond ace and ruffed the diamond ten. At this point I thought the contract was in the bag, led a small heart to the king, and returned dummy's last spade to ruff. East checked the heart nine and I suddenly realized that the fact must be in the fire. Of course the proper thing to do was to cash the heart ace at trick eight, the heart king at trick nine, and then cross-ruff the hand, conceding the last trick. Also there were other ways of playing the hand to fulfill the contract. I realize that my play was terrible, so there is no need to go into it. Our discussions centered around the bidding. A kibitzer, who had a rather substantial bet on the game, had a good deal to say. He said that the slam should not have been bid; that I should not have opened the bidding and that, having done so with less than two and one-half honor tricks, I should have bid three no trump over my partner's two no trump. My partner said that perhaps he should have bid three no trump over the one club. However, there were so many things said, pro and con, that we resolved to boil the issues down to the following and ask your opinion: (1) Does the South hand contain two and one-half honor tricks? (2) Should South open the bidding? (3) Is North's two no trump response correct? (4) That response having been made, should South's rebid be three hearts or three no trump? (5) After the three heart bid by South, is North justified in raising to four clubs and finally bidding six clubs? (6) Is the three heart response a slam invitation or does it even show any values in excess of an opening bid in this sequence?

"J. B. Alabama."

"My correspondent's confession concerning the play of the hand covers that point adequately, so we may confine ourselves to the specific questions asked. The answers are as follows: (1) The South hand does contain two and one-half honor tricks, including the plus values of the blank spade king and the heart jack. (2) Yes, South should open the bidding with one club. (3) No, North's two no trump response is not correct. Three no trump would be far better or, if North preferred to "approach" it slowly, he could make the noncommittal waiting response of one spade. (4) Two no trump having been bid, South's three heart bid was correct. (5) This is a difficult question to answer. It is always dangerous to attempt to rectify in later bidding a mistake that has been made on the first round. North's two no trump did not express his values, hence he naturally was at fault to clarify the issue after South's three hearts and although his four and six club bids were slightly inconsistent with each other, and with his previous two no trump, they cannot be criticized severely. (6) The three heart rebid by South is in no sense a slam invitation, nor does it show any values in excess of the opening bid. It is made in response to a strong bid from partner (two no trump), by which partner has in a sense assumed captaincy and control. The three heart bid does no more than indicate South's distribution.

If pearls have to stand a little while when you're canning them, it's best to keep them covered in salt water so they won't darken. Use two tablespoons of salt to a gallon of water. To help keep pearls used in appetizers, salads or desserts from darkening, sprinkle them with a little orange, lemon, lime or grapefruit juice as soon as peeled and store in a cold place.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME

Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

FAMILY DINNER

The casserole dish is many a woman's best food friend. With fall coming on the children back in school, casserole dishes will be coming back into their usual cool weather popularity. Casserole dishes are time and energy savers. One doesn't have to neglect other jobs to stand over a stove to watch the cooking. "Cover and Bake." And except for an occasional peek, one can go about the other work without having to worry about what's happening in the oven.

Orange gives today's casserole dish its particular flavor. It's a hearty meal that men like. If you are fond of grape marmalade, you will want to try the following recipe.

Floating Island is a simple all family dessert, filled with splendid nourishment. The healthfulness of eggs and milk, the kind of nourishment that makes little bodies grow strong, that gives your husband health and energy.

THE MENU

Southern Pork Chops

Tomato and Celery Salad

Parker House Rolls

Grape Marmalade

Floating Island

Southern Pork Chops

4 large or 6 medium sized sweet potatoes 4 pork chops

1 large orange Salt and pepper 2 tablespoons water

Scrub sweet potatoes, and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Cool and skin them. Slice the potatoes in half inch slices. Slice or unpeeled very thin. Remove seeds. Put a layer of sweet potatoes in a buttered casserole. Put a few slices of orange over the sweet potatoes. Sprinkle with the salt sugar. Cover with the rest of the sweet potatoes and orange slices and sprinkle remaining sugar over the top. Brown pork chops in a hot skillet. Season on both sides with salt and pepper. Arrange chops over sweet potatoes and orange. Add water. Cover and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. for one hour or until chops and rind of orange are very soft and tender. Baste occasionally during baking with the syrup that forms in the casserole.

Grape Marmalade

Pick over, wash, drain and remove stems from grapes. Separate pulp from skins. Put pulp in preserving kettle. Heat to boiling point, and cook slowly until seeds separate from pulp, then rub through a fine sieve. Return to kettle with skins, add an equal measure of sugar and cook slowly thirty minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Pour into hot sterilized jars, cover with paraffin.

Floating Island

1 quart milk 1 teaspoon

4 eggs vanilla

1 cup sugar 1 tablespoon

1 teaspoon salt cornstarch

Heat the milk. Separate the eggs. Mix salt, sugar and cornstarch, add to yolks, beaten slightly. Beat whites until very stiff, add 2 teaspoons sugar, beat slightly and drop mixture by tablespoons on top of the hot milk. Place in oven until delicately brown, lift out on plate and set aside. Pour hot milk on beaten yolks. Put this mixture into a double boiler and stir and cook until it thickens. Add vanilla. Put baked whites on top and serve cold.

My Neighbor Says—

Use two strands of dental floss instead of one when restringing beads. Beads are not so likely to cut through two strands.

Garbage will not freeze to the can during the Winter if coarse fine salt is scattered over the bottom of can when it is empty.

If two tablespoons of shortening are added to the batter when making griddle cakes it will not be necessary to grease griddle.

One of these desperate fathers writes: "I am a most unhappy man, a father who is losing his children, who are dearer than life to him, being alienated from him by their mother and made to believe that she alone loves them and cares for their happiness and that he is a spoilsport who denies them the things they want, interferes with their pleasures and punishes them when they are bad."

"The children never give me the credit for giving them anything voluntarily. My wife always puts herself in the position of being their benefactor and getting things out of me and extorting the new dress or bicycle they want from me. And she holds me as a threat over their heads. 'I'll tell your Father on you if you do so and so,' which effectively kills all affection that they might have for me."

"I think it is a terrible thing for a mother to tell her children's love to be first with them. But I could stand that. What kills me is that she never controls them, never teaches them any manners, never denies them anything, and when I try to enforce a little discipline she makes such scenes that I have given up all efforts to rear them properly. I can't do it alone, and my wife won't help me or even back me up in my attempts."

And the pity of this case, which has its duplicate in thousands of other homes, is that it is hopeless. Neither Father nor Mother can make a successful job of rearing children alone. It takes teamwork.

Hints for Business Experts

At sales conventions, the men are often encouraged to bring their wives. But the wives are herded into bridge parties or sent off on sightseeing tours. A grand ball may be held on the final night, at which dancing and a stage show are headlined.

But intelligent wives should be given more than simple entertainment at such conventions. They need the same type of sales training which their husbands receive. Often their judgment is better than that of a man as regards certain types of merchandise and sales appeals. If they can understand the sales problems confronted by their husbands, and be taught the cardinal sales points for the merchandise they can become invaluable allies of the company for whom their husbands work.

Instead of acting as a wet blanket when their husband returns home from a day of multiple defeats, they can become a cheer leader, and pep him up.

Pay the Salesman's Wife

It would be good strategy if commercial firms cooperated with the intelligent wives of their salesmen and paid the wife a bonus for helping increase her husband's effectiveness.

If she studies the merchandise till she can furnish him new points, or give him a new perspective regarding his old, threadbare sales story, she should be encouraged in such good work.

Put her on the pay roll. She will take even more interest in her husband's business as a consequence, which will also be a constructive measure in helping cement them more firmly together in marriage.

Many marriages fail because the husband and wife have too little in common. Progressive companies in the future are going to pay more heed to the wives of their salesmen.

Cooperation of Parents Is Vital in Rearing Children

BY DOROTHY DIX

There is no one so stupid as not to recognize that any business is bound to fail in which partners work against each other and nullify each other's efforts. Yet in rearing children, which is the most important undertaking that human beings ever attempt, we daily see this elementary fact ignored and parents fighting over their difficult theories of bringing up their youngsters.

It is because Mother and Father can't agree on any one thing about rearing the children, from whether the baby should be put to bed in the dark or rocked to sleep to what age he should be given an automobile and permitted to go out and commit murder on the high roads, that is responsible for the present crop of wild, undisciplined, law-defying youths who fill our prisons and bring shame and sorrow upon the heads of their respectable parents.

Mother and Father have never cooperated in any plan for bringing up the children. If Father thought they should be taught to behave and to be obedient, Mother accused him of being a tyrant. If Mother tried to teach the children civilized manners and how to eat like ladies and gentlemen instead of pigs, Father scoffed at her efforts as foolishness and said that manners would come to them by nature as they grew.

When Father tried to punish the children for wrongdoing, Mother went over them and "poor deared" them until she made them feel like persecuted martyrs, and all the effect of the lesson, that in life we must suffer for our sins, was lost. Even an infant in arms can read its parents' mental reactions like an open book, and when Father and Mother are wrangling over whether Johnny and Susie shall be made to eat their spinach or make their meal on ice cream, Johnny and Susie have settled the problem, as far as they are concerned, by doing as they pleased and flouting any attempt to control them.

Which one is to blame when parents fail to work together and present a solid front of unquestioned authority to their children differs, of course, in different cases, but always it is a terrible mistake or which they have to pay with their very heart's blood, the suffering can be great as the agony a father or mother endures at seeing an adored child being unfitted for life and being balked in his or her every effort to save it.

One of these desperate fathers writes: "I am a most unhappy man, a father who is losing his children, who are dearer than life to him, being alienated from him by their mother and made to believe that she alone loves them and cares for their happiness and that he is a spoilsport who denies them the things they want, interferes with their pleasures and punishes them when they are bad."

"The children never give me the credit for giving them anything voluntarily. My wife always puts herself in the position of being their benefactor and getting things out of me and extorting the new dress or bicycle they want from me. And she holds me as a threat over their heads. 'I'll tell your Father on you if you do so and so,' which effectively kills all affection that they might have for me."

Gladys Swarthout to Appear On Community Artist Series

THE Community Artist Series for this season will open with a concert by Gladys Swarthout, famous star of opera, concert, radio and more recently of sound films. Miss Swarthout will make her Appleton appearance Monday evening, Oct. 30. Other concerts in the series include Donald Dickson, baritone, featured radio soloist and Metropolitan star, Monday, Dec. 4; the Stradivarius Quartet of New York Tuesday, Jan. 9; the Lawrence A. Cappella Choir, Carl J. Waterman, director, Tuesday, Feb. 13; and Arthur Rubinstein, the famous Polish pianist, Monday, April 15. The concerts will be given in Lawrence Memorial chapel.

Gladys Swarthout, star of opera, concert, radio and more recently of sound films, has had a swift rise to fame in these four fields.

The young mezzo-soprano has been spared from traveling a long hard road to success. Her ability, charm, good looks and willingness to work have speeded her along with short cuts at every point. She has behind her a career which includes the Chicago Civic Opera, Metropolitan Opera, coast-to-coast concert tours, and broadcasting engagements of a decidedly lucrative nature. She has been starred in four motion pictures, "Rose of the Rancho", "Give Us This Night", "Champagne Waltz", and "Romance in the Dark".

From the start, fate took a hand in making things easy for her. At the time of her engagement with the Chicago Civic Opera company at the beginning of her career, this young singer from Missouri did not know a single complete operatic role. She had sung in concert and had listened to her friends urge her to make an attempt at opera. Finally the friends took matters in their own hands and arranged an audition for her in Chicago. She went there, sang a few of the operatic arias she had learned for her concert repertoire. A few days later she was amazed to be confronted with a contract for the following season.

But if she had neglected her operatic repertoire before this audition, she made amends during the summer preceding her debut. In those few days she learned twenty-three roles. She absorbed operatic music through every musical pore. With a sweep of energy worthy of her Middle West heritage, she accomplished what she had to do.

From the offstage shepherd in "Tosca" she passed on to the onstage shepherd in "Tristan". Role after role followed until at the end of that first season the records showed that she had sung in more than 50 per cent of the total number of performances. Her first plunge into opera had given her experience to spare.

Once in a theater nothing could stop her. It was Mary Garden who pointed out to her the value of attending rehearsals, even if she was not singing in the opera under production. After such sound advice most mornings would find the young novice down at the theater, score in hand, listening to rehearsals and watching. She carried this enthusiasm with her to Ravinia during three summers.

Nine years ago the Metropolitan Opera opened its doors to her. She made her debut there as La Ciccia in "Gioconda" and immediately gave evidence of her ability. After that she was assigned most of the important mezzo roles in the Italian and French repertoire.

She is greatly in demand for personal appearances and appears in a tour from coast to coast. Her tour this summer included an appearance in one of the open-air concerts in Milwaukee.

D.E.E. Club Adopts New Plan for Weekly Meetings at Church

Last night the Bible study meeting was held at the church under the leadership of Dr. John B. Hanna, pastor. Next Thursday the dramatics meeting will take place.

Teachers Committee Compiling Manual on Safety for Schools

The safety committee of the Appleton public schools met yesterday afternoon at Morgan school to inspect a tentative outline for a safety manual which will be used in the schools starting in the fall of 1940.

Compiled by teachers appointed to that task, the outline contains safety material to be taught from kindergarten through the senior high school.

Yesterday's meeting was the first of a series to be held at which teachers will make suggestions for improving, amplifying, or shortening portions of the manual. Special assignments were handed out for teachers to carry out during the year.

Committee chairmen will have until Monday, Dec. 18, to make their preliminary report containing recommendations for revising the manual and until April 3, 1940, to make their final report.

In its present form, the manual contains 101 pages, with foreword by Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, and introduction by Guy W. Barlow, principal of Wilson Junior High school.

The table of contents is a guide to the material related to the various grades. On an early page are suggested monthly safety topics which "might be emphasized by all teachers during the school year."

The book covers a wide range, from the kindergarten dramatization of a street crossing lesson by building a miniature city, with cars, stop lights, etc. through discussion of home accidents caused by burns and shocks and on to senior high school instruction in driving an automobile.

Members of the committee working on the manual are as follows: Kindergarten, Lucille Nehls, chairman, Carolyn Boettcher, Mabel Meyer, first grade, Rose Conlon, chairman, Beatrice Pavey, Katherine Tracy, second grade, Genevieve Thullen, chairman, Emma Schwandt, Viola Pelzer, third grade, Meta Froelich, chairman, Mildred Nicols, Genevieve Murphy.

Fourth grade, Myrtle Van Ryzin, chairman, Magdalen Kohl, Tess Holzer; fifth grade, Charlotte Foss, chairman, Rose Wuest, Margaret Dancker, chairman, Lella Mortimer, Blanche Moser.

Latest developments in the field of lighting and actual demonstrations of experiments that have been carried on in research laboratories will be presented before the general public by Dr. Phillips Thomas, Westinghouse research engineer, at 7:30 tonight in Morgan school.

It was pointed out today by Kenneth H. Corbett, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the lecture, that the general public is invited to attend and that there is no admission charge.

Louis Liebknecht, city electrician, said today that Appleton people should do so, remarking that Dr. Thomas has an extraordinary series of demonstrations on his program.

Blue light, made in a finger-sized lamp, which casts a brilliant light to one-fifth the sun's surface brightness, invisible "black" light which paints the rooms in colors, and a modulated light that makes a stream of water play tunes are among the demonstrations which will be presented tonight.

Dr. Thomas gave a demonstration before ninth grade students of Appleton public and parochial schools and Appleton Vocational school students this afternoon.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Wichmann Funeral home by the Rev. Theodore R. Burial will be in Appleton Highland Memorial park. The body will be at the funeral home from Saturday evening until time of funeral services.

2 Tax Proposals Sent to Senate By Lower House

Approximately $15,000,000 previously authorized by both houses, including the $10,000,000 cigarette-income surtax measure which became law this week.

Senate reaction to the "patchwork" revenue making plan was not certain but there appeared to be little prospect the legislature could adjourn sine die by Tuesday as some leaders had planned. If the session extends into Wednesday it will equal the all-time record.

The assembly left undisturbed the pension portion of the bill, which the senate already has approved. Several amendments were attempted mostly by Progressives.

The pension section of the measure would boost the maximum possible monthly payment from $30 to $40; appropriate $2,500,000 in addition to the $7,788,000 previously designated for pension purposes; increase the state's share from 30 to 35 per cent; reduce the county contribution from 20 to 15 per cent and would appropriate $1,075,000 aid for dependent children.

Boost on Incomes

Repeal of the individual dividend income deduction clause in the present law would bring about $8,251,000 into the state treasury. An additional $780,000 would be netted on a one-half of 1 per cent boost on incomes over $5,000 yearly, and an additional $200,000 through repeal of the income tax offset on grain and coal supplies.

The bill originally would have produced $14,550,000 but $5,000,000 was slashed from it with rejection by a 63 to 19 vote of a proposal to levy a tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline for one year.

In much the same manner as the tax bill was affixed to the pension measure, other revenue producing proposals are expected to be attached today to a bill appropriating $5,000,000 for relief.

Receipts for the biennium would be raised to about $67,000,000 after adding anticipated revenues of about $44,000,000 under present permanent levies to the $10,200,000 cigarette and surtax levies; last night's bill of $5,871,000 (subtracting the local communities' share) to the privilege dividend tax of $3,000,000.

Arguing on the basis that the $44,000,000 estimate was conservative, it was held in some quarters that a greater yield from that source combined with governmental economies would bring the administration closer to balanced budget.

Amendments to the pension bill, which the house defeated before approving the combined measure, would have prohibited the state from placing liens on the homes of old age assistance recipients; required secret hearings for applicants; and would have placed the county share of costs entirely upon the state.

Students' Images Are Produced in Television Talk

Lecturer Explains, Demonstrates Equipment At High School

By actually "televising" two members of his audience, Lewis W. Hoskins demonstrated the principles of television for the assembly of Appleton High school Thursday. It was the first time that the entire school convened this year.

Hoskins' equipment consisted of an elaborate transmitter as well as receiving set. Most of his portable "studio" was devised by U. A. Sanabria, one of the pioneers in the field and holder of more than 125 patents.

The first person to be "televised" was a senior, sitting in the first row. Although the "subject" had his back to the audience, his features were visible to the entire assembly on the projection screen. To demonstrate the power of the machine to project features clearly and even show difference in coloring, Hoskins then asked a high school girl to perform for the television audience.

Make-up, the lecturer explained is extremely important in television, and a whole new technique had to be devised. Highlights in the features must be brought out to create the illusion of three dimensions, he stated. Yellow is one of the most effective colors, for example, to emphasize the lips and the eyebrows.

"It will be some time before television can be used outside of a metropolitan area," Hoskins declared. "The equipment used at present cannot transmit images for more than 25 to 50 miles." Because of shorter distances between cities Europe has made more use of television than the United States, he pointed out.

Hoskins first began his experiments in the field of television in the laboratories of Friends university, Wichita, Kansas, where he was an instructor. He has studied television under Sanabria and keeps in constant touch with him, improving his equipment as new discoveries are made.

Officers of the acting group for the fall semester were inducted at yesterday's meeting. They are Bertha Smyrnes, president; David Bliss, vice president; Cecil Speel, secretary; and Betty Roemer, treasurer. There are 39 members in the acting division, which convenes on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

The acting group will present three 1-act plays during the year. Most of the work, which includes preparing of the stage, directing, and acting, is done by students.

Students who were accepted into membership last spring will entertain at the next meeting. Those students are Dorothy Bailey, William DeLong, Merrie Ebert, Rosemary Hopkins, John Leonard, Olin Mead, James Miller, Virginia Nabbefeld, Tom Nolan, Detle Notaras, Jeanne Ruhlberg, Jim Sherry, Don Smith, Joyce Tummers, Jean Watson, June Weisgerber and Frances Wheeler.

Pool Stairway Is Engineering Feat

Steel Rods Support Circular Structure at Recreation Center

Neenah — An engineering feat as well as an artistic accomplishment was completed Thursday at Neenah's $150,000 swimming pool and recreation building when the semi-circular stairway leading to the top deck and gallery above the women's bathhouse was finished.

The circular stairway, the only one like it in this district, is constructed of concrete, and like the rest of the concrete architecture of the buildings, it has been stoned until it is practically white.

Without visible supports or pillars of any kind, the stairway circles from the ground 11 feet to the top deck overlooking the large pool. The stairway took a couple of weeks to build and much more time to re-design. To make the stairway solid and strong enough to support a capacity crowd, 12 steel bars seven-eighths of an inch thick have been twisted through the concrete.

The stairway is anchored at the foot by a large block of concrete which is set in the ground, and steel bars, which were set in the concrete when it was poured, are twisted about half way up the stairway, supporting the lower half.

Supporting the upper section of the stairway are similar steel bars which have been cantilevered off the top deck and extend down half way into the stairway. The bars have been inserted 15 feet into the concrete on the top deck.

Neenah Veteran Never Misses National Legion Conventions

Neenah — "You bet I'm going to the convention" was the reply of August Glebke, 217 S. Lake street, Neenah, when asked whether he was planning to attend the annual national American Legion convocation at Chicago Sept. 23 to 28.

In fact, the Legionnaire has been giving that answer every year for more than 17 years, for Glebke hasn't missed attending a national Legion convention since they were inaugurated.

Glebke, who was with Battery E, 603th field artillery, avers that every one of the conventions has been well worth attending, and in attending the conventions, the Legionnaire, who was in France for nine months of the war, most of which was spent in a hospital, has attended gatherings in New Orleans, Kansas City, St. Paul, Detroit, San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Cleveland, Boston and other cities.

Attending the Legion conventions are Glebke's annual vacations. He also attends most of the Wisconsin state Legion conventions.

Although the World war veteran has attended all these conventions, he still maintains the title of "buck private," never having held an office or a post on a committee.

Glebke, who said he was engaged to marry Miss Clara Christianson, Navarino, late this fall, said he expects to continue attending the national conventions after he is married.

Meet Mr. Lochinvar

By Marie Bizard

did she steal down the North road furtively, hoping that no one would see her, but when she got to the shack, she shamelessly pried open a window and went in.

She apologized silently to Locke for the thing she was doing, and then she prowled. There were very few things there and it was neat as the proverbial pin. A single cup and saucer, a few plates, a mixing bowl—all neatly arranged on a shelf in the spotless kitchen. Three shining pots at the back of the stove. A few potatoes and a turnip in the bin.

Cecily hesitated before drawing the curtain that divided the shack into two rooms. Nevertheless she parted it and went in. There was an army-cot bed, meticulously made up; an old armchair, a straight chair and a makeshift table. On the table there was a locked portable typewriter. On a shelf over the bed there were twelve books. Tapestry or the Mirror of Civilization. Lord Jim. The Oxford Book of English Verse. The History of Crime. The Desert Fathers. The Detection of Crime. Roger's Thesaurus. The others were novels. An odd collection.

Cecily felt she ought to leave. At the end of the room, a burlap curtain concealed the corner. Cecily peered back of it. There hung three suits, the familiar dungarees and old sweatshirt, two shirts with the sleeves cut off.

It was at the three suits that Cecily stared. They were not old, they were not rumpled. They were new, expensive, beautifully tailored and quite definitely not the sort that she had expected. Cecily was vaguely, she drew back the lapel of each, searching for a written name in the pocket lining. There was no name.

Then she discovered a piece of luggage. The kind that cost a great deal of money. Heavy pigskin—expert workmanship. There were labels. Labels from Switzerland, Vienna, Paris, Leningrad, Mexico City. Not the labels you'd expect to find on the luggage of a man who was content to sell a pound of mushrooms, a few quarts of berries. There were labels, but there were no initials.

There wasn't a sign in that whole cabin to give you the slightest clue to the identity of the occupant. Labels from Europe could mean anything. Complete absence of any identification could also mean anything—it could mean that that absence was intended.

Cecily went to the old-fashioned dresser that she had noticed at first. She couldn't bring herself to open the drawers. But on the dresser top there was a small basket. The kind that the Indians from the reservation brought around during the summer to sell to summer guests. Cecily lifted the sweet-grass lid and at first she thought there was nothing in the basket. Then a gleam caught her eye and she took the basket to the light in the window.

There, at the very bottom, as though they had been forgotten, were two small black pearl studs. Cecily didn't know very much about black pearls but she knew from their luster, their perfect shape, that they were valuable.

She replaced the lid, carried the basket back to the dresser top and put it down. Then she let herself out the way she had come.

More questions. She had accomplished nothing more than to increase the pace of the questions that stirred around her mind with feverish intensity. And to add another more startling question: what were those beautiful black pearls doing in Locke's basket?

Cecily Stuart, you promised yourself that you wouldn't think about it any more. You'd put it out of your mind. Immerse yourself in other things.

One of the other things was the

State Onion Crop 3 Million Pounds Smaller This Year

A decrease in the onion crop in Wisconsin this year is shown in a report of the state department of agriculture, according to information received by J. F. Magnus, county agent. However, the nation's crop is estimated at about 11 percent larger than last year.

Estimates show that the state has about 1,250 acres of onions for market this year. The yield per acre is expected to be about 15,000 pounds, which is 3,000 pounds below the yield shown for last year.

About 19 million pounds of commercial onions are expected to be harvested in Wisconsin this year. According to present estimates the state crop this year will be 3 million pounds smaller than the crop harvested last year, but 1 1/2 million pounds above the average production for Wisconsin.

Dim Lights for Safety

Town of Brillion Farmers In War on Creeping Jenny

Forest Junction—A tentative allotment of 300 pounds of sodium chlorate for eradication of creeping jenny in the town of Brillion was oversubscribed by four times that amount when approximately 50 farmers from the township attended a meeting on the subject at the town hall here Tuesday evening.

With the assistance of A. L. McMahon, Calumet county agricultural agent, who addressed the meeting, requirements aggregating 1,500 pounds were computed for 19 farmers, whose patches of the weed on their respective farms varied in size from a few square feet to several square rods. While 300 pounds had already been delivered to the township, the additional 1,200 pounds of the chemical will be procured directly from Madison to be distributed to the users at the town machinery shed. Cost to the users will be approximately 4 cents per pound, one-half of the actual cost.

To aid those who have never used the chlorate County Agent McMahon is conducting a demonstration at the John Steinbach farm a mile east of Forest Junction at 1:15 next Monday afternoon.

Meeting here at the call of the agricultural conservation committee of Calumet county, approximately 150 town Brillion farmers signed applications at the town hall Tuesday afternoon for benefit payments under the 1939 conservation program. The sign-up was conducted by Albert Hillman, Armin

Schwallenburg and Edwin Seybold of the county committee. About 220 farmers are estimated by the committee to be participating in the program from this township and the additional members will be called at a future date not yet definitely determined.

The annual election of township committees for the 1940 program will be held during the first week of October. The schedule of meetings in each township of the county was still incomplete Tuesday.

Nursery Stocks are In Sound, Healthy Condition in State

Nursery stocks in Wisconsin were pronounced generally sound and healthy by the department of agriculture today following the completion of summer inspections of nursery grown shrubs, trees and small fruit plants, according to J. F. Magnus, county agent.

The inspections are carried on to safeguard buyers and to prevent the spread of insect pests and diseases. The inspections are required before nursery licenses can be issued.

The deadline for dealers, agents and growers to secure licenses is Oct. 1. The state department urges buyers to demand a valid inspection tag on each lot of nursery stock purchased, Magnus said. Unknown agents should be forced to show credentials.

Lack of Disease Control May Cut State Cow Market

Farmers Demand State Funds for Bang's Disease Eradication

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The Wisconsin dairy breeder is finding it increasingly difficult to sell his stock in other states because of stiff restrictions on blood-testing enacted in many of them, according to officials of the state department of agriculture.

Appearing before the legislative joint finance committee to support the $700,000 Bang's disease appropriation bill, Ira Inman, Rock county breeder and member of the state board of agriculture, and Dr. V. S. Larson, state veterinarian, testified that eastern markets are almost wholly closed to all except tested stock.

The Wisconsin farmer, therefore, and particularly the breeders' associations, demand that the legislature make funds available for a Bang's disease eradication program, they told the legislators.

The state legislature has toyed indecisively for three months with the question of providing the funds to pay farmers indemnities for the cattle condemned in the testing program.

Reduce Budget
Originally the bill budget called for $800,000 a year, or $1,200,000 for the biennium. This was reduced to $400,000 in the senate a few weeks ago, however, and later the assembly decided to remove the appropriation altogether in order to expedite disposal of the cigar and surtax bill.

Dr. Ora Rice, Walworth county assemblyman and farmer and author of the present appropriation bill, explains that it is a compromise between the generous and the niggardly in the legislature on the question of Bang's control. There are now ten counties in the area testing plan, it is said, and if the appropriation is approved three more counties in which farmers have voted for the program are ready to be included.

According to Inman, the Wisconsin farmers now find it impossible to ship any but blood-tested cows to the important markets of Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey. Larson added that some of the southern states are also setting up restrictions against the shipment of untested cattle from Wisconsin. With that trend, they warned, an important source of cash income for Wisconsin agriculture may ultimately be destroyed.

WATCH HIS SMOKE
Gumbertland, Md. — J. P. John H. Twigg believes with Kipling: "A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke."

Memorial Hospital attaches found the 75-year-old patient's bed empty. He had walked out on a bevy of pretty nurses. They caught up with him a block away. He was in pajamas and robe, contentedly puffing a perfect.

AAA Farm Plans For 1940 Approved

Information to be Released Soon to Outagamie Farmers

Provisions of the 1940 Agricultural Adjustment Administration farm program have been approved and will be revealed to Outagamie county farmers in time for them to plan cropping operations, according to information received by J. F. Magnus, county agent.

"Thorough consideration was given to the present European situation and its possible effect on American agriculture when the 1940 program was drafted," Magnus explained. "The aim of this program is to maintain a production of farm commodities in this country which will balance with demand, whatever that demand may prove to be, and to maintain and improve the fertility of our farm land."

The provisions of the program dealing with agricultural conservation measures follow closely those in effect this year and are based on farmer recommendations, he said. Changes emphasize soil conservation on all farms the country over and recognize special conditions in certain areas.

Soil building practices have been provided to meet more adequately the needs for soil conservation, Mr. Garvey pointed out, and special emphasis will be given to conservation of wildlife. Features which further encourage soil conservation are a provision which sets up a minimum payment of $20 for all farms participating in the program, and a provision allowing farmers to earn up to $30 for tree planting.

Valley Gridders Playing Tonight

Appleton Goes to Green Bay to Test West's Wildcats

LINEUP IS CHANGED

Rollins Is Benched and
Ray Brash Suffers
Knee Injury

FOX VALLEY CONFERENCE
Tonight's Games
Appleton at Green Bay West.
Green Bay East at Sheboygan
North.
Manitowoc at Fond du Lac.
Sheboygan Central at Oshkosh.

FOX RIVER VALLEY conference football teams will open league play this evening with all teams in action. The games will be at Sheboygan North, Green Bay West, Fond du Lac and Oshkosh. The season also marks the return to an 8-team football league with Sheboygan North officially entered for the first time.

Appleton High school will have the doubtful honor of tackling the top-ranking squad in the loop when the Terrors oppose West under the Bay lights. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

West's strength is based on the fact it has 12 lettermen, there being a letter winner for every position except center. Added to that, the Wildcats will show a backfield that carried over intact from last season and each of the four boys is a sprinter.

The backs are Bob Fonder, quarter, Mike Powers, left half, Bob Kluchesky, right half, and Royal Dessart, fullback. Last week against Marinette, West won an 18 to 7 verdict. Powers scored twice and Kluchesky once. August Marinette the Bays showed no passes but it is said Powers is a better than average tosser.

Change Terror Lineup
Appleton's lineup will be considerably changed from that used last week against Boys Team when the Terrors got away with a 3-0 win. Ray Brash, fullback, probably will be missing because of a knee injury and Rollins will be replaced at tackle.

Bill Burton has been moved from end to tackle to fill Rollins' place and Larson will show on the wing. On defense, Burton will move into the backfield and Junge will move to tackle with Konz moving to guard. It makes a rather mixed set-up but it is necessary to get the strongest boys in the positions they play best.

Tom Reider will be at the strong side and Tom Heinrich at the strong side tackle and Henry Kozietzke at the strong side guard. They make a fine trio and all have experience. The center spot will go to Francis Crabb.

In the backfield, Marvin Filz will have a lot of work cut out for him in the tailback position. Konz will show in the wingback post while Pegel will perform at fullback in the place left vacant by Brash's injury. Fraser will be at the other half and do the blocking.

Coach Myrlon Seims will have a fair group of reserves. It understood on the Terror squad that you work to play and as a result the competition is keen.

Green Bay East goes to Sheboygan North and is expected to romp to victory No. 31. East will be too polished for the northsters. Manitowoc invades Fond du Lac and, with the Cardinals primed for a big season with a flock of veterans, many of them backs, the Ships maybe in for a bad evening.

In the remaining game, Oshkosh enters Sheboygan Central and will find the lake shore team a tough proposition. Central has many veterans while Oshkosh is handicapped by learning a new system. However, Oshkosh will have Luckner to carry the ball and a big line and won't be shoved around.

Milwaukee—Bill Phillips, Spring Valley, Ill., junior, and Bob McCabill, Whitefish Bay, Wis., sophomore, are rivals not only for the quarterback position on the Marquette university football team. They're both accomplished players and are competing for squad honors in keyboard harmony.

Detroiters Think Gehring - Won't Be Doing Much in 1940

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
DETROIT—(AP)—Everybody was well pleased with the fight gate and Detroit goes down in this book as the best sports town in the country. Most baseball baseball baron is Powell Crosley, Jr. owner of the Reds—he won't even talk over one of his own radios. The guys in the street here—taxi drivers, bartenders etc.—don't think Charlie Gehring will play more than half the schedule next year.

Public Notice
This bureau has received no less than 65 amateur hour contributions calling Tony Galento the "Beer Barrel Piker." It's old stiff, boys. . . Bill Cunningham pulled it in the Boston Post before the Louis-Galento fight. . . So lay off.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

NOW IS THE TIME for all good sports writers to show how far from right they can be and, as it is expected of us, let's go. The season isn't far along so perhaps we can survive a few upsets and "our public" won't say too much about the muffs.

Appleton-Green Bay West—After hearing John Walter praise West the other night there's no reason to pick anyone but West. With 12 lettermen back at West and with a complete backfield of four boys, Appleton has nothing that can compare. Unless it's fight.

Sheboygan Central-Oshkosh—Now that's a hard one. Central beat Kenosha last week, has practically all of last year's team and usually looks good to start the season. Oshkosh has Luker and a big line. Purely on a tossup, we'll take Central.

Green Bay East-Sheboygan North—It's the same old story and the same old tune: East.

Manitowoc-Fond du Lac—The latter has the greater number of veterans and a backfield that performed last season. Fond du Lac.

Shawano-West DePere—Don't know a thing about West DePere but all reports from Shawano are the Indians are tough.

Kaukauna-Menasha—Two mighty good ball teams will clash in this game. If we pick one, the other coach will use our guess to help prime his team. But we have to guess, and because Kaukauna won the title last year and because it has a veteran team, we'll take Kaukauna and fear an upset.

New London-Clintonville—Now, if Del Stacy was at New London, we'd pick Clintonville out of pure cussedness. But Del's gone and Greg Charlesworth has eight veterans and a big squad so it looks like New London, believe it or not.

St. Mary's-Menominee Indians—St. Mary's will have too much coaching. But the Indians may be awfully big—or awfully small.

Kimberly-Chilton—Chilton is an unknown quantity but somehow we believe Ray Hamann will have a pretty good team at Kimberly. Kimberly.

Kiel-Little Chute—St. John probably will find the invaders too polished. But Little Chute fight may win.

Simpson-Beloit—The Gold will have too much stuff.

St. Norbert-Wheaton—It'll be a dog-fight. On the spin of a coin. Wheaton.

Lawrence college freshmen have been practicing for the last week and they are around in goodly numbers and some of them really are big. So far they haven't had time to organize and show their stuff but they won't be taking a back seat even for the varsity.

And Pete Briese and Marvin Babier have about 60 sophomores and other high school grid hopefuls out every afternoon at the West Spencer street field. Some of the juniors and seniors in the group hope to move to the varsity in a week or so. They reported late and that's why they're not with the current varsity squad. But it'll take an awful lot of work to make the sophomores as football minded as kids in Green Bay of the same age.

By the way, what ever happened to that plan to inaugurate 6-man football in the junior highs? Who killed cock robin?

The most recent football expose lists Beloit, Carleton and Knox among the grid lily whites. Lawrence isn't mentioned as being white, spotted or black. Can it be that the author doesn't know what to think about the Vikes winning the Midwest conference title last year? Well, we didn't know what to think, either, especially with a working squad of 15 players.

Auburn Mentor Likes 'Em Tough

Says Fans Don't Like to See Favorite Romp
Over Weaker Team

Auburn, Ala., (AP)—Softspoken Jack Meagher, the Auburn football professor who got his master's degree under Knute Rockne, insisted today the tougher the opposition the better it is for all concerned.

With 18 years in the none-to-settle business of coaching football, the 46-year-old onetime marine has always played hard schedules—not only for financial returns but because he figures the fans who pay are entitled to and expect to see close games.

"There is nothing to gain," said Meagher, "by playing so-called 'setups.' I don't believe there is a football fan who likes to pay to see his favorite team romp over weaker opposition. You certainly don't gain any prestige by such victories."

Meagher landed at Auburn in 1934. Previously he coached at Rice Institute five years after leaving St. Edwards University in Texas. His contract at Auburn runs to 1943 and alumni would like to see him given the job for life.

To play a fine schedule of tough games," he said, "you make yourself and your team look good in the eyes of the public. The average football lover wants to see a contest, not a runaway."

Slated to Repla
Contest Tonight

Coated Paper company and Kimberly-Clark softball squads will take the diamond at Roosevelt school at 5:30 this afternoon to continue the contest which ended in a 2-2 tie Tuesday evening. It is the first game in the league's championship series which features round winners.

Reports were current today, however, that K-C may forfeit the game. Ray Hamann, the team's hurler, can not show because his high school gridgers have a game tonight. It also is reported Kimberly feels an umpire's decision cost it a win Tuesday. The villagers feel the seventh inning should not have been played because of darkness. It was in the seventh that Coated scored to tie the game.

Waldorf Builds Aerial Offense At Northwestern

Iowa Also to Emphasize Passing Game as Big Ten Campaign

CHICAGO—(AP)—Football opponents of highly ranked Northwestern would do well to give more than passing notice to their pass defense before engaging the Wildcats this fall.

Head Coach Lynn Waldorf's charges used aerials only moderately last fall, but reports from the Northwestern camp say the Wildcats are spending much time perfecting an overhead offense to go with their admittedly powerful running attack.

Quarterback Jack Ryan and left halfback Ollie Hahnenstein did most of the passing last year and both are back. In addition, Waldorf has capable passers: Daniel Richards, Iggy Mescer, Erwin Maden, Bill de Corvoet, Don Kruger and Paul Soper.

Iowa's Eddie Anderson, like Waldorf, was reported planning to emphasize a passing game this season in his first year as mentor of the Hawkeyes. He has a superlative passer in Nile Kinnick, around whom the offense will be built.

Badger Soph Stars
Don Miller, big sophomore back, gave the Wisconsin veterans a look at his heels yesterday in the Badger workouts. During a scrimmage he scored three touchdowns and kicked one extra point as the varsity performed in sluggish style.

After light drill was on tap at the University of Illinois today in preparation for Saturday's annual freshman - varsity game. Notre Dame had a similar game scheduled for Saturday at South Bend to sharpen the Irish for their season opener against Purdue a week hence. Punting and forward pass exercises consumed most of yesterday's drills at Purdue. Lou Brock, junior fullback, got into a few minutes of route work.

Minnesota's fourth team held the regulars to three touchdowns in a stiff workout, yesterday. At Columbus, the fine work of sophomore Jim Daniell in practice thus far has given him the inside track for a starting berth at tackle for Ohio State.

Dave Strong, former Illinois quarterback, tossed passes for the reserves yesterday against Michigan's varsity. Former Coach Harry Kipke witnessed the Wolverine workout. At its conclusion he said the "team looks good—no other Big Ten school can surpass that first string backfield, but Michigan needs capable substitutes."

Indiana is concentrating on a defense against Nebraska, their initial opponent eight days away and Chicago's Clark Shaughnessy reported himself well pleased with the Maroons' first practice scrimmage yesterday.

Kimberly Primed To Humble Chilton

Kimberly—Eight o'clock tonight will see this village alive with activity and all eyes will be on Coach Ray Hamann and his high school football squad when they engage the Blugolds of Chilton under the ball park lights.

Coach Hamann sent his squad through light signal drills yesterday and believes his boys will put up a good scrap. The squad had the benefit of Van Dyke and Vanden Boogaard, two of last year's stars, in going over Chilton's plays and passers. The visitors have ten veterans on their squad while the Paper-makers have one. The high school band of 40 pieces will play.

Baltimore—Nick Fiorentino, 214, Philadelphia, outpointed Marty Gallagher, 210, Washington, (10).

Garfield, N. J.—Pat Comiskey, 200, Garfield, knocked out Tony Celli, 188, Worcester, Mass., (2).

"It's a Navy Year," in the Opinion of Annapolis Coach

BY JOHN S. GROVER
ANNAPOLIS, MD.—(AP)—Major Emery E. (Swede) Larson, Navy's new football coach, admits the Rockne and Warner systems have their points, but he's using a modified "Hannibal" system this year.

Hannibal was the smart field general who quartered the Carthaginians to an early-season win over the Romans in 216 B. C. by trotting out a herd of elephants against the Roman team at Cannae.

The "Hannibal" system requires some good, fast elephants in the line and backfield, and this year Navy's Swedish coach has them. All he needs is Little Egypt and Pink lemonade to have a three-ring circus.

His first-string line averages 207 pounds from end to end and includes two who may merit all-America consideration. Big Dick Opp, 210, a rookie tackle, and Harold (Swede) Hanson, 225-pound end, are the ranking stars.

Teamed with these two is a rough, tough bunch of fellows. The first team line has Capt. Al Bergner, 215, at the other tackle and Lou Burke, 190, a steady veteran, at the other end. Tom McGrath, 227, and Doc Trimble, 200, are the guards. Hal Harwood, 180, and Bill Sims, 197, divide the center chores.

The men in the backfield include Monty Whitehead, 180, and Ed Gillette, 190, blockers, and Doc Wood, 180, and Cliff Lenz 205, both triple threats. In addition, there are plenty of beefy reserves up front and in the backfield.

"It's a Navy year," the Swede says. "That Hannibal, he really had a system."

Navy opens Sept. 30 against William and Mary and plays Virginia, Dartmouth, Notre Dame, Clemson, Penn. Columbia, Princeton and Army in order, with an open date Nov. 18.

Girls' Title Ball
Game Is Postponed
To Sunday, Oct. 1

Managers Carl Zeigler and Bill Reetz of the Appleton Merchants and the Blue Jays, respectively, have decided to postpone the softball game scheduled for tonight at Forsters diamond. The game, which will decide the feminine softball championship of the city, will be played Sunday afternoon Oct. 1 at Pierce Park diamond.

The Merchants recently shared the Fox River Valley championship and received a trophy for sportsmanship at the state tournament held in Madison Sept. 3-5.

The Blue Jays are a recently organized softball team and have been winning a large percentage of their games. The Birds are scheduled to play the much publicized Fox Valley All-Stars of Kaukauna Sunday afternoon at the latter's diamond.

Refute Claims That Joe Louis Is Slowing Down

Braddock Declares as Good Now as He Was Two Years Ago

BY GAYLE TALBOT
DETROIT—(AP)—If one man has told me in the past 24 hours that Joe Louis was slipping, that soft living has dulled his aim and that he no longer was the Brown Bomber of a year ago, then there have been a dozen. Some of them must be classed as expert observers of fighting men—if there is any such animal.

They say they saw the symptoms in the course of the Negro's fight with Bob Pastor night before last. They don't think the "old" Louis would have let any man survive five knockdowns in the first four minutes of fighting and then stick around until the 11th stanza before going down for good.

So I asked Jim Braddock. Big, popular Jim was the man from whom Louis won the title a little over two years ago. He should have a pretty good idea. Does Louis qualify as a truly great fighter, I asked him, and has he passed his peak?

"Get this," said the former champion. "He is the greatest fighter who ever entered the ring. He is the greatest fighter you will ever see in your life. He's as good now as he was the night he fought me. Why should he be slipping at 35?"

"No," I said, his mind working. When Pastor survived those first two rounds Louis decided to wait and nail him. After all, that Bob can take a good punch. And he's tough to hit, because he can move both ways. So Joe didn't waste many punches. He just waited, and the next time he hit Pastor that was the end of it."

Braddock's opinion is good enough for me. I think Louis is the greatest fighter I'll ever see. I still get goose pimples at the start of each fight when the bell clangs and Joe comes slithering out after his man. Others say they get the same feeling, as if something terrible were about to happen.

Football Photo-Diagram 4. Pittsburgh Regular Reverse

By JIM CROWLEY, Fordham Coach

The reverse has always been one of Pittsburgh's strongest plays. The Fordham Rams, under Coach Jim Crowley's direction, run off this Panther play with Halfback Len Eshmont carrying the pigskin. The ball goes direct to the quarterback. He spins and hands it to the right halfback, who races around left end, as the fullback takes out the defensive right end. The left end blocks the defensive right tackle. The left tackle, left guard and right tackle whip out of the unbalanced line to join the interference. The center blocks the right guard and the offensive right guard bumps the defensive left guard. The right end spills the defensive left tackle.

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

BY ALLAN KERR
WISCONSIN dog show activities are pretty well buttoned up for the year. From now until the close of 1939 the sporting dog is king, and the outdoors calls to the hunting and field trial enthusiasts.

The swing to the latter in recent years has been almost phenomenal. It was not so long ago that field trials in this part of the country were unknown. A few hound trials were held, and the Northern States club at Superior got going on bird dog stakes (for just pointers and setters) about 14 years ago and has developed into one of the leading organizations of its kind.

While the first trial on record was staged near Memphis, Tenn. in 1874, with nine dogs starting, more than 200 such events are now run in various parts of the country, and an entry of 50 dogs is not unusual. The big majority of these are sponsored by American Field, Chicago, where great numbers of the sporting breeds, chiefly the pointing varieties, are registered in the Field Dog Stud book.

In more recent years the American Kennel club has interested itself in this increasingly popular phase of dog activity. But they have expanded the sport to include the spaniels and retrievers as well as the so called birds dogs and hounds.

This action pleased a great many Badger sportsmen, for here were kennels for the breeds that adapted themselves well to the type of territory and working conditions found in this state. Here also were the opportunities for nimrods who owned hunting dogs to give their canine pals year 'round work at their sport.

In 1934 the American Spaniel club, the Springer Field Trial association, and the American Kennel club got their heads together and agreed on rules and regulations for the conduct of spaniel trials. Although events of this nature had been run previous to that time, this branch of sporting dog activity has made its greatest strides since.

Organize Field Trial Club

The greatest contributing factor in Wisconsin was the organization of the Wisconsin Amateur Field Trial club at Milwaukee about two years ago. Its springer trials, which are being staged today and tomorrow at Moquon, near Milwaukee, will attract many of the finest English springers in the middle west. Hundreds of outdoor fans will make up the gallery of spectators, if the attendance at past trials is any indication.

Dogs will be worked on live pigeons and pheasants and will perform on both land and water. Persons who have wondered just how good sporting dogs do their stuff under actual hunting conditions would do well to plan their Sunday picnic so as to take in some of these thrilling events held near the Kiwanis gravel pit at Mequon. The various stakes will be run both morning and afternoon.

For those who like to see and hear the hound dogs swing it, the Wisconsin Beagle club will provide a solid week of work for the little 13 and 15 inch bell-voiced buglers. They will hot-foot it after cottontails near Kewaskum from Sept. 30 to Oct. 6.

Mike Murphy, Green Bay, secretary of the organization will answer all inquiries about the trials. He has just returned from campaigning his dogs in Michigan, where his Speed's Honey Boy Queen took first in the 13 inch bitch all-acre stake, and was declared best beagle at the trials in an entry of 60. She also won the bench show.

Induction Rites At Clintonville

Clifford Mullarkey Assumes Duties as Grand Knight for Coming Year

Clintonville—District Deputy Robert M. Connelly of Appleton presided at the annual installation of officers of the Clintonville Council of the Knights of Columbus Wednesday evening. He was accompanied here by a group of Appleton knights who furnished music during the installation ceremonies.

Officers for the ensuing year include: Clifford Mullarkey, grand knight; Frank Joswiak, deputy pointed if this or that station doesn't find time to give the stuff a send.

Unions, too, send out publicity, and while some of it is fair and truthful, this matter, like all other propaganda, has a habit of neglecting to mention further truths which would take some of the heat off their grievances and contentions.

Lots of Money Spent

On it is just wasted

Most of the states appropriate money for propaganda, or publicity, and there are any number of leagues, associations, foundations, institutes and so forth which are just publicity offices, ballyhooing isms and promotions or crying boycott against various hunks of our own population and foreign countries. And, rather oddly, most of the propaganda for Americanism is actually propaganda against Americanism put out by dumb old brigadiers who want to blow off after years of repression or by churchless preachers who try to rouse people to horrible cruelties by telling them that their neighbors have been going around slandering Christ.

You can't depend on any of this material, and I think the daily press does a good job detecting and rejecting, because I handle a great deal of it and rarely see in print anything that I recognized as a handout of this type, unless it is copped by compensating truths obtained from the opposing side. It seems to me that most of the money spent on propaganda is wasted.

Plan Demonstration on Calumet County Farm

Chilton—A demonstration for those who are interested in checking up on the differences to be seen between various types of hybrid breeds and some of the open pollinated varieties will be given at 1:30 Saturday afternoon, at excellent young orchard with a fine selection of varieties just coming into full production. The advantages of a complete and thorough spray system for the control of worms and diseases also was demonstrated here.

Following a grading and packing demonstration, Prof. Kuehner displayed samples of the more desirable varieties of plums such as the Underwood, Tokata, Toka, Kahinta, and also a self fruiting Italian prune, The Moor's Early and Warden are early blue grapes with a better flavor than the Concord Theodore Christoph's farm, one-half mile east of Chilton. Although this has not been what could be called a good corn growing season, there are some definite observations that can be made in regard to the yield, character of growth and maturity between the different hybrids and the open pollinated varieties, according to County Agent A. L. McMahon.

In this field are 14 different strains of hybrids; four of a 110 days maturity; six of 105 days maturity; three of 100 days maturity; and one of a 95 days maturity. The open pollinated varieties include Silver King, Golden Glow, No. 12, Iowa Golden Mine and Red Cob, which is usually too late for this section. Portland and Ontario, two white grapes, and Delaware, Brighton, and Caco, three red grapes were also sampled. Samples of the Zachman pear received many compliments.

GREEN fall and winter!

No, we don't think that the lilac bushes will bloom in December or that Old Man Winter isn't going to be on deck before long — but all the same it looks like a "green" winter (colorwise) for men whose knack of dressing well is just a jump ahead of the average.

We've concentrated on two new Fall 1939 shades of green that will draw a nod of approval from even the most conservative men and women (and we do mean women!) — Mallard Green and Willow Green.

Mallard has the dark-green cast of the feathers of the wild mallard duck—it turns dusk blue at night and is extremely smart.

Willow is a grey-green with an unusual depth and richness. Most important, both of these shades are becoming to most men — they're far from the old bilious green shade of yesteryear!

We can especially recommend these greens in a fabric that combines quality, style and value in a most unusual way.

S-a-y! That's what young Appleton is saying.

One word . . . but it means plenty . . . for when a young man sees this store full of Fall furnishings, he's looking at the same stocks he'd seen if he had a swell job in Chicago.

"S-a-y? How do you get that way in a city the size of Appleton?" asked one traveling man and we replied . . .

"We counted the smart young men in the city and then bought smart furnishings for all of them."

RISE AND FALL OF BABYLON

—The Goddess Ishtar

If a cup of oil is poured on water, it will float for the simple reason that oil is lighter than water. The oil will also spread. If we watch it closely, we observe that the spreading is not the same in all places.

The moon-god, Sin, with odd Babylonian writing behind him.

Four thousand years ago, such facts about oil taken from animal fat were known in Babylon, and priests of the city made use of them. They said it was possible to tell fortunes by watching the oil. If a person wanted to know what would happen to him, he paid seven pieces of silver to the priest.

Babylon's priests also acted as doctors of a sort. If a person had a headache or a fever, he was shown a small image of a certain demon which was said to be causing the trouble. Then the image was burned or destroyed in some other way. Sometimes it was dropped into the river so it would be "drowned."

Such ways of getting rid of sickness seem foolish to us, and they certainly were. Yet they were early efforts of men to find a way to cure victims of a sort. In later centuries, doctors slowly learned better ways to treat patients.

The temples of Babylon were built of bricks. The land in and around the city had few trees, and that is why wood was not used for building. Blocks of stone were very hard to obtain, so stone was not in common use.

In making bricks for houses and palaces, it was the custom to bake them with fire. This was not true, however, of bricks which were meant for building temples. Those bricks were composed of clay which had been dried in the sun, but which had not been hardened by fire.

There was a fancy that the sun-dried bricks were the only proper kind for buildings used for religion.

Among the temples at Babylon was one reared in honor of the goddess Ishtar. She was known as the "Earth Mother" and as the goddess of love. No farmer could hope to have fortune with his crops unless he paid tribute to Ishtar.

The father of Ishtar was supposed to be the moon-god, and he had a name which seems queer to us. He was called "Sin!"

New York — (P) — The stock market's war boom faltered today after an opening bulge in which gains ran to two or more points.

Overnight buying orders put the ticket tape behind for a while at the start, with blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changing hands. The flurry was brief, however, and profit-taking soon cut extreme advances or converted them into losses. Selling expanded just before the close and recessions of as much as a point or so predominated at the finish.

Dealings slackened to the smallest in some time, but the forenoon

Prices of Wheat Follow Erratic Path at Chicago

Market Alternates Between Lower, Higher Courses

Chicago — (P) — Wheat market alternated between lower and higher courses today and wound up slightly below yesterday's quotations.

The market was unsettled by short covering in September contracts, in which trading ended today, scattered profit-taking and hedging and continued drought in the winter wheat belt as well as prospective resumption of limited export subsidy operations by the government.

Receipts were: wheat 17 cars; corn 295, oats 27.

Wheat closed lower to higher compared with yesterday's finish, December 881-1, May 871, corn 11 down, December 551-1, May 581-58; oats 1 off to higher.

AEF's First 'Doughnut Girl' Prays U. S. Will Stay Clear

BY ALBERT WILSON

New York — (P) — The most famous Salvation army lassie of the World War spoke with the experience of one who saw more than her share of war's horrors when she prayed today that the United States may keep clear of the present European conflict.

"I try to shut my eyes to the awful memories," said Brigadier Helen G. Purviance, who was the AEF's original "doughnut girl."

"But when people talk of what we may do, or should do, I don't know what to say—only those pictures come back to me."

She was a young and pretty "mother" to thousands of doughboys. Between the summers of 1917 and 1919, while in France, she admits to have celebrated a 28th birthday anniversary. She was born in Huntington, Ind.

Now her hair is gray, but her light blue eyes are as bright, her cheeks as rosy and her face as smooth as when she went across with the first Salvation army unit from America.

"I've never balked at an order and I'm ready to go again if the United States is involved," she said. But younger, if not prettier, lassies would go this time, for the brigadier now is assistant field secretary of the army's eastern territory—comprising 11 states—and she undoubtedly would be more valuable in an executive post in the New York headquarters.

She showed a Salvation army dispatch saying 35 huts were being established in France. It has no Polish or Russian units, but it is active in England, France and Germany. It is the only unofficial or non-nazi group allowed to wear uniforms in the reich.

Police and Firemen Pension Bill Given Assembly's Approval

Madison — (P) — The assembly today unanimously approved, 79 to 3, a senate measure liberalizing pension and benefit payments to police and firemen.

The bill, which was returned to the senate for concurrence in amendments, represented a compromise on requests of the officers and firemen and proposals advanced by the League of Wisconsin Municipalities. It was drafted by Assembly Speaker Thomson (R) Richland Center.

The measure would raise employees contributions from 1 to 3 1/2 per cent of their salaries, and permit them to retire after 22 years of service, providing they are 57 or more years old.

Exceptions would be made in certain cases. Firemen who joined forces before 1917 would be allowed to retire after 22 years, regardless of age limits; and those who started between 1917 and Jan. 1, 1920, could retire after the same period if they were 52 years of age. After that time all firemen and policemen, would come under the 57 years age provision and 22-year service requirement.

Under the present law policemen could retire at any age if they had served 22 years, and firemen could retire after 22 years if they were 55 or over.

Mount Rainier 'Slips' From Third to Fourth Place in Height Rank

Tacoma, Wash. — (P) — Mount Rainier, the granite and glacial stud that dominates western Washington's skyline, isn't shrinking — but it's dropped a notch, from third to fourth place, in the altitude rankings of the nation's highest peaks.

The mountain, which rears its perpetually snow-capped head 14,408 feet above Puget Sound, dropped to fourth place recently when the U. S. Geological Survey remeasured Mount Massive, Colorado, and revised the peak's height at 14,418 feet.

The shift in rankings gave Colorado the nation's second and third highest mountains, Mount Elbert, 14,311 feet, and Mount Massive, 14,495 feet is Mount Whitney, Calif.

Rainier, defied by Indians and referred to as "The Mountain That Was God," holds in the crevices of its steep slopes the greatest single peak glacial system in the United States.

In 1897, Rainier was declared the highest mountain in the United States when surveys set its altitude at 14,528. Another survey, in 1913, revised the height to 14,408.

380 Turkeys Take an Early Morning Trip

Meberly, Mo. — (P) — A farmer near Meberly heard a commotion in his turkey roost about 3 a. m. He dashed out and called the sheriff when he discovered his 380 turkeys were gone.

The sheriff placed two deputies on the trail and some time later drove to the farm house for more clues. He found the turkeys sleeping peacefully.

They merely had been frightened away and then came back to roost.

Meibourne, Australia — L. G. Lawson

Lawson says his hobby is a boon to farmers. He says he can determine the sex of day-old chicks at the rate of 1,000 an hour "when I'm feeling fit."

The WORLD OF STAMPS

War isn't keeping Japan from issuing new stamps.

A great Japanese statesman of the seventh century, Kamatari Fujiwara, is pictured on a green 5-en (yen) postage stamp recently released.

The design was made by Teizo Kasori and Masaru Kimura of Japan's communications ministry from five old paintings of Fujiwara now in the Imperial household museum at Nara, Japan's ancient capital.

The new issue was printed by the intaglio method.

National Park Set

And that's not all for today from Japan. There's a new set of stamps showing various photographs of Aso National park in Kyushu.

The views in the four-stamp set are:

- The ochre 2-sen showing Mount Kuju;
- The green 4-sen, Nakadake peak;
- The red 10-sen, crater as seen from Nakadake;
- The blue 20-sen, volcanic cones in the central crater of Mount Aso as seen from Kuju Highland.

Two Special Sales

Two interesting auctions are scheduled for this fall.

The first, at the Collectors club, New York, October 30-November 4, will be the sale of the U. S. and Confederate stamp collection of the late Stephen D. Brown. This is one of the finest such collections in existence. The auction, originally scheduled for London, was transferred to New York because of the European war.

No announcement of any change in locale has come through about the second auction, scheduled to begin at the H. R. Harmer galleries, London, on October 9.

What some persons say is the world's finest collection of old Russian, Finnish and Polish stamps, with a value in excess of $100,000, will go on the block in this sale, which was to last throughout the winter. Finnish and Polish issues were to be the first ones sold.

The stamps are the property of Agathon Faberge, son of the Russian court jeweler of Edwardian days. The most valuable single items of the collection are a block of six Finnish 10-kopek stamps of the series of 1853 printed "tete beche," and an even rarer set of four of the 5-kopek denomination. Each of these items is expected to bring in more than $1,000.

Faberge, who now makes his home in an old castle near Helsinki, Finland, was a tremendously wealthy man in a revolutionary Russia with a priceless collection of precious stones, a palace, and one of the finest racing yachts in the old empire.

He was imprisoned by the Bolsheviks at the outbreak of the revolution and most of his property was confiscated.

Faberge ultimately was permitted to leave the Soviet Union. Later Russian states.

Increased Income For Farmers Seen

Farm-Implement Industry Optimistic About Business Prospects

Chicago — (P) — The farm-implement industry has felt mostly "psychological" effects of Europe's war so far, but there is generally much more optimism about business prospects in coming months, according to sources in the industry today.

The war set economists to working. Leading experts on farm prosperity, which has so much to do with the implement industry's business, expressed belief that the war—leaving off early in the summer—prices will greatly improve farm income.

They pointed out that 40 per cent of farm income is derived in the last four months of the year and that marketings in those months of 1939 will benefit from the price upturn.

Indicative of the industry's position is the decision of leading manufacturers to book no business for delivery beyond certain dates up to Jan. 1 except on the basis of prices effective at delivery time. This step was taken to protect manufacturers against possible increases in production costs.

Farm machinery makers began to note some improvement in orders in July and early August. In fact, the sharp decline experienced in 1938 and early 1939 showed signs of leveling off early in the summer, but because most of

Embargo Repeal To Mean Battle In House, Senate

Resourceful Minority
Against Change in Law,
Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — What was most significant about President Roosevelt's address to congress was not the main proposal to repeal the embargo on arms and stay out of war, but the manner in which he mobilized his arguments. Clearly the president took cognizance of the contentions of men like Senator Borah of Idaho who have been outlining their views in the last few days.

But Mr. Roosevelt did more. He wrote a message which cannot but be construed throughout the world as defensive—a message which intimates the possibility that, in a world of might-makes-right, no nation can afford to apply its rules on any other basis than those which have always existed in international law governing the rights of neutrals.

Thus, the president took particular pains to answer the suggestion of those who say it is unneutral to change the statutes now that war has come. He turns the matter back by specifically enumerating his various requests as far back as last January, when there was no war. By inference, he places the responsibility for failure to make the change on those who voted this past summer in the senate foreign relations committee to postpone action till the regular session of next January. His point is that the pro-embargo group cannot have it both ways, preventing action by threatening a filibuster before war broke out, and insisting that to change now is unneutral.

The president offered no new arguments in behalf of repeal. The idea that America must ship to Russia anything she wants, but cannot send anything of war supplies to Britain and France is one so obviously inconsistent in the view of the administration that correction of this deviation can only be made by repealing any statute that goes counter to international law.

Prefers Cash Idea
It is plain to see that the president would prefer to have the "cash and carry" program put into effect without legislation so that exceptions can be made in the matter of travel by citizens who have legitimate errands. But, on the other hand, if congress insists on barring all travel in war zones, the executive will not object, though it is hard to see why a simple pronouncement that the American government would not afford protection to its citizens in certain areas would not have the same effect as legislation, without subjecting our own authorities to the difficult task of prosecuting someone who went abroad and at his own risk took a belligerent ship because it was the only way to get from one neutral port to another.

The chance of involvement in war arises for the most part out of a fear that the American government will hold Germany to a strict accountability for attacking American citizens when travelling on the high seas. But the proclamation of a president saying that Americans should not travel in war zones is in itself an announcement of the withdrawal of that protection. The trouble in 1917 was that Germany attacked American as well as foreign ships, and sank them with innocent American citizens on board.

Nobody in congress has yet proposed that the United States shall abandon the rights of her citizens on the high seas, though this, to be sure, is the real position of the isolationists. Some of them would really like to go as far as the president challenged them to do, namely, to shut off all American commerce with the outside world, foodstuffs, supplies and raw materials included. If it meant possible involvement. The difficulty is that submarine warfare now is being waged against any and all articles of supply and that, so far as American ships are concerned, they will be sunk, too, if found carrying any cargoes whatsoever which might reach Britain or France.

People Indifferent
But the sinking of American ships is apparently not going to bestir the American people as it did in 1917. There is growing up a feeling of indifference, exemplified in the attitude of the country when the steamer Athenia was torpedoed without warning.

If, therefore, it is the opinion of the nation that travel on the high seas should not be permitted to become an incident of war with Germany, there is no special reason why any and all supplies cannot be sold to be carried off in the ships of foreign countries. The theory is that Germany may resent America's supplying airplanes and would not resent the export of raw materials used to make the planes is not likely to gain much ground. The isolationist bloc will fight any change in the present law that permits the embargo on arms to be lifted. The race now is between two sets of exponents. Each claims it wants to keep America out of war. The people who dislike the president will insist they will not take his protestations about keeping out of war seriously because he may benefit politically by the emergency. And the people who want aid given to the allies are willing to swallow their dislike of the administration on domestic policies so as to make sure the allies will win and Hitlerism kept from invading America.

So it's a battle between two groups for the support of American public opinion. Who can do most to keep America out of war?
